Outside the rain fell. Through the big picture windows of the hotel, clinging to its mountain-side, we sat watching the huge clouds, ragged and black, form and reform, being blown and driven by the wind and peaks.

We looked at it over newspapers and talked of the news. There was the tragic kidnaping story.

"There never was but one happy kidnaping story," said one who looked at the storm.

"What was that?" asked another.

"The Ransom of Red Chief," by O. Henry.

We all nodded—remembering—with laughter.

Hours later a lady, hearing one retell the conversation, said, "His widow still lives here, you know."

"But O. Henry died in 1910!"

"Yes, but Mrs. Sara Coleman Porter still lives in a house built near the site of the one in which he did some of his work."

So, through her kindly offices, we went to see her.

Gentle and sweet, frail and a bit arthritic, she lay propped on a sofa in the living room of her house, with pictures of William Sidney Porter, whose pen name was O. Henry, on table and wall about her.

O. Henry

He was the most popular short-story writer of his generation. Though dead now almost half a century, his collected works are still in print, and the O. Henry Memorial Award goes annually to the best short story of the year.

"So many memories come back," said the shy, gentle lady whose face and smiles reflected her pleasure in remembering.

"And so many things have been written about him which were not true. One was that he could never work without a big red apple on his desk. How that came to be imagined I don't know."

"He was a kindly, retiring man, and most of the time a happy one. But he was always behind with his work and, therefore, always pressed for money. His publisher would hold it up, trying to get his manuscript."

"This brought another memory and she laughed."

"He got even, though," she said. "He'd send them the story a page at a time. And when they'd write or telephone he'd say, 'Well, you have SOMETHING, don't you?'"

"He never hurt anyone, or wanted to," she continued. "Some newspapers at Nashville attacked him for his story 'A Municipal Report,' which had that city as its locale. I remember once he picked up a volume with that story in it and said, 'I wonder what they don't like about it?'"

Nashville Climate

The story had appeared just after the turn of the century and Nashville had been wounded by the description of her early morning climatic conditions, as follows:

"Take of London fog 30 parts, malaria 10 parts, gas leaks 20 parts, dewdrops gathered in a brickyard at sunrise 25 parts, odor of honeysuckle 15 parts. Mix."

Once, Mrs. Porter recalled, she had interrupted him while deep at work and he replied abruptly. She retired, hurt. In a few minutes he came to her room.

"I hurt your feelings a moment ago, didn't I?"

"I didn't mean to," he replied. "You must remember, my dear, that the blood of the cavalier and the commoner are mixed in me and I never know any day which will prevail."

They both laughed and it was over.

Mrs. Porter said her husband never expressed any real preference for any particular story, but he once said he thought those in the volumes titled "The Gentle Gaffer" and "Roads of Destiny" were perhaps the best collection.

"The Ransom of Red Chief," the only happy kidnaping story, tells of a youngster who was such a terror to the kidnappers they finally agreed to pay the father $250 to take him back. "The Gift of the Magi," "A Retrieved Reformation," "The Last Leaf" are but some of the best remembered.

"I wish," she said, "he could know how his work has lived, and how he need not have worried about money after all."

R. H. Lawson New Head of Road Board

Roger H. Lawson of Hawkinsville, Monday was elected chairman of the State Highway Board.

His selection was announced shortly after Gov. Griffin swore in new board member Roy Chalker of Waynesboro and predicted record highway expenditures in Georgia in the next three years.

Griffin said Georgia will build $320,000,000 worth of new roads in the coming three years. The figure includes ordinary Federal aid dollars, which the state matches on a 50-50 basis; the new interstate program and $70,000,000 remaining in the Rural Roads program.

Chalker was named to fill the vacancy created when Chairman Walter Blasingame resigned two weeks ago.

The governor praised Blasingame during the swearing-in ceremonies at the Capitol Monday.

Apparently referring to criticism of the outgoing chairman over purchasing practices in the highway department, Griffin said that "critics are necessary, but sometimes they overdo it."

Griffin said he was "most grateful and appreciative of the splendid work" done by Blasingame.

Monday's action concluded a series of intra-administration job changes.

Chalker, named to the Highway Board from the Southern District, formerly had been state parks director. He was succeeded by John W. Brinson Jr. of Waynesboro, assistant director since 1955.

Lawson was named to the Highway Board in 1955 by Griffin. He is also chairman of the Rural Roads Authority.

WASHINGTON, July 16 (AP)—The House Ways and Means Committee voted today to cancel the 10 per cent federal excise tax on tickets to movies, plays, concerts, sports events and similar amusements costing $1 or less.

The exemption now is 50 cents. Increasing it to $1 would cost the Treasury an estimated 70 million dollars a year in revenue. The administration has opposed any tax reduction at this session of Congress.

The committee action was taken by a split voice vote in closed session.

$2 Billion Arms Works Bill Vetoed

New Measure Sped For Ike by Vinson

By RUSSELL BAKER

(Copyright 1956 by The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, July 16—President Eisenhower vetoed a two-billion-dollar military public works bill today on grounds that it is a congressional invasion of executive authority.

In the House there was prompt action to rewrite the big money bill to satisfy the President's objections.

In a veto message to the House, the President argued that two provisions of the measure would "violate the fundamental principle of separation of powers."

Both provisions would have empowered congressional committees in charge of military affairs to hold a rein over the department of defense's administrative functions. One of the disputed sections also carried overtones of the interservice rivalry for domination of the anti-aircraft missile field.

MISSILE PHASE

The bill authorized $2,136,400,000 for military projects in this country and abroad. These included work to spur development of an intercontinental ballistic missile and an atomic-powered airplane.

The measure is regarded as so important to national defense that Congress cannot afford to lose it. Immediately after hearing of the veto, Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) chairman of the House armed forces committee, prepared a substitute eliminating the sections to which the President objected.

Vinson said his committee will approve the bill tomorrow and it will go to the House for a vote Wednesday.

One of the rejected provisions dealt with the Talos anti-aircraft missile, now regarded by the Air Force as the most effective land-to-air missile for continental defense. The Air Force had proposed to develop the Talos as the core of its own anti-aircraft missile program.

CLASH WITH ARMY

In this, however, it clashed head-on with the Army, which had already entrenched itself in the

Big Top Hoisted in Finale As Ringling Circus Collapses

By A. H. RASKIN

PITTSBURGH, July 16—The "Greatest Show on Earth" played under canvas for the last time here tonight.

The Ringling Bros. and Barnum and Bailey Circus ended its 1956 run four months early and announced it would never play again in the form that brought joy to "millions of children of all ages."

The tinselled, tented fairland, as its publicity men love to describe it, fell victim to television, traffic congestion, labor trouble, bad weather and mounting costs.

It was the third outdoor circus to pull down its "big top" for good in the last two months. Its passing left scores of tiny "truck shows" still operating, but none of major magnitude.

John Ringling North, the show's president and board chairman, pronounced the end of an era in a pro-saic statement issued through his press department. He said he considered the tented city "a thing of the past."

A chorus of dissent came immediately from clowns, acrobats and equestrians. It was echoed by hundreds of Pittsburgh children who received the news with glum disbelief as they waited for the afternoon performance to start four hours late.

OFF TO FLORIDA

But all hope evaporated with notice to the performers and rousters to pick up their final paychecks and prepare to board the 80 silver circus cars tomorrow for the return to the show's winter headquarters at Sarasota, Fla.

North said an "all-new" presentation of the circus would open next April 3 in Madison Square Garden in New York, traditional starting point of the show's annual tour. The rest of the 1957 season will be played in air-conditioned arenas "all over the United States," the circus chief said.

Some students of the show's financial and labor woes expressed doubt that it would reopen at all.

This view got no encouragement from North. "We are considering plans for the future which may involve an almost completely mechanically con-

Senate Votes More Aid to Aged, Blind

The U.S. Senate Monday night approved an amendment to the Social Security bill which would increase grants to the states for needy aged, blind and disabled persons.

If the measure is approved by a joint House-Senate conference committee, Georgia will increase its maximum payments to such persons from a current $55 to $65 a month, Alan Kemper, director of the State Department of Public Welfare, said.

Georgia now receives $35 in federal money for maximum benefit cases drawing a total of $55. Under the new legislation, the federal government would provide $42.50 toward a maximum payment of $65.

Judge Kemper said he believes that funds now available to his department would cover a $2.50 increase which the state would have to provide for the $65 maximum monthly benefits. The aid of the governor and the Legislature would be sought to keep the added benefits on a going basis, he said.

He pointed out that not all needy, aged or blind persons get the maximum grant. Other income is taken into consideration.

The 62-21 vote in the Senate on the long-stymied Social Security Bill represented a defeat for the Eisenhower administration.

The increase would take effect Oct. 1 and the total cost to the federal government has been estimated at $208 million annually.

The provision was not in the House bill approved a year ago.

House Rebuffs Dixie, Limits Debate on Ike's Rights Bill to 2 Days

Senate Ready To Table Move On Enforcing

By C. P. TRUSSELL

(Copyright 1956 by The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, July 16—Democratic and Republican supporters of the administration's civil rights bill won their first test in the House today. They defeated by 151-103 a Southern Democratic attempt to stretch out debate. Had the Southerners won they might have held the highly controversial measure on the floor for nearly a week at a time when the congressional adjournment fever is running high. Much other business needs to be attended to before Congress gets away for the party conventions and campaigns.

So there will be two days of debate before the House starts working the President's program into final form. These two days could be long ones or short ones. Parliamentary tactics could make them short ones. The opponents appeared to fear that their side of the story would be cut off.

WANTED HOURS SET

Rep. Howard W. Smith (D-Va.) called for a specific number of hours of debate. Meanwhile, the proponents had called the bill a "moderate" one for which both Democrats and Republicans could take credit. The Southerners held that it is an assault upon states' rights, that it gives merciless power to the executive branch, and would let a new assistant attorney general turn loose hordes of volunteer informants who could violate "real civil rights."

Today's performance seemed to be strictly for the filling out of the personal records of the House members. With the adjournment day set tentatively between next Saturday and the Saturday following, no one appeared to know how the civil rights bill could possibly get through Congress this time.

HOUSE AGOG ANYWAY

While House members fought every foot of the way through debate this afternoon, the rights bill continued to have no other appearance than that of a dead duck. The Senate committee on the judiciary had not even reported it to the floor. It seemed to have been abandoned.

Yet, the House members went into white lather. They were

Death March Defense May Call Marine Chief

By BEM PRICE

PARRIS ISLAND, S.C., July 16 (AP)—How Marines are trained—and what 27,000 Marines think of those methods—became a sharp issue in the court-martial of S. Sgt. Matthew C. McKeon here today.

Defense counsel hinted that the commandant of the Marine Corps, a four-star general, might be called to testify.

McKeon is the 31-year-old drill instructor from Worcester, Mass., who led six Marines to their deaths last April 8 in water-covered marshland bordering this 5,000-acre Marine training center.

The charges against McKeon include involuntary manslaughter, oppression of recruits by mass punishment, and drinking on duty.

McKeon's defense attorney, Emile Z. Berman of New York City, demanded that the Marine Corps produce the results of a questionnaire asking Marines and former Marines what they thought were the best methods of training.

Berman said the results of that survey had a direct bearing on the training methods employed by

In Hormones

By KEELER MCCARTNEY

Thieves early Monday ripped through a concrete wall into a Spring street, NW, laboratory and made off with approximately $50,000 in a pharmaceutical hormone preparation, police said.

Detectives J. O. Smith and S. E. Smith said the burglary was discovered at 7:30 a.m. at the Ayerst Laboratory, 1359 Spring St., NW.

BY-PASS ALARMS

Detectives said the intruders cleverly by-passed a burglary alarm net which covered the doors and windows to the warehouse building. A 24-by-36-inch hole was dug through a concrete wall of the building.

Ignoring other valuable drugs, the thieves took only bottles containing 100 Premarin tablets, detectives related. They said a quantity of bottles containing 1,000 and 2,000 such tablets were not moved.

A spokesman for the laboratory said such tablets are dispensed only upon a physician's prescription. He said the drug is used chiefly to treat female ailments and contains no stimulants.

MAY HAVE ERRED

Detectives said it was possible that the intruders picked up the wrong drugs after blasting through the wall. However, they pointed out in a carefully planned, professional manner.

A lookout was placed with drug stores and pharmaceutical houses over the southeast.

Mrs. Luce's Illnesses Laid to Arsenic Paint

NEW YORK, July 16 (AP)—A bizarre diplomatic secret was reported tonight: A long series of illnesses of Clare Boothe Luce, U.S. ambassador to Italy, was caused by arsenic poisoning.

The deadly arsenic came from paint on the ornate ceiling of her bedroom in Rome. It sifted down in tiny amounts of dust during the first 20 months she lived there, getting into her breakfast coffee. In hot weather, she inhaled it daily.

The disclosure was made by Time magazine, published by Mrs. Luce's husband, Henry Luce. The magazine told this story:

"The ceiling of Mrs. Luce's bedroom in Villa Taverna, the ambassador's residence in Rome, was heavily beamed and decorated with clusters of roses and rosettes. Many coats of white-leaded paint were brushed on the decorations.

After a year's residence Mrs. Luce began feeling vaguely tired and ill. Nervousness and nausea followed. She discovered she could hardly manage to dance a waltz

Russia Backs Japan, Asks Atom Test Ban

Shepilov Tells Parliament
U.S. and Britain Are Balking

MOSCOW, July 16 (AP)—The Soviet parliament endorsed today a plea from Japanese lawmakers that parliaments all over the world strive for an end to tests of nuclear weapons.

The action was taken after Foreign Minister Dmitri Shepilov told the Supreme Soviet that the Soviet Union was willing to end the tests but could not obtain agreement from the United States or Britain.

U.S. DEMANDS INSPECTION

The United States and Britain are opposed to an agreement on ending nuclear tests unless it is made part of an over-all disarmament plan subject to controls and inspection.

The two Western powers took this position in turning down Friday in the U.N. Disarmament Commission Indian-Yugoslav proposals for banning tests. James J. Wadsworth, the U. S. ambassador, said the United States would continue to work for agreement on limitation of tests and safeguarding mankind against dangers of excessive radiation.

Shepilov's speech was his first to the Supreme Soviet. He took over from V. M. Molotov as foreign minister a month and a half ago.

SUGGESTS U.N.

He told the 1,300 parliamentary delegates agreement on an end to nuclear tests could be reached by any one of three methods: Within the framework of the United Nations; by three-party agreement which other nations could join later; separate statements from each government declaring it was abandoning nuclear tests.

"We consider that the question of the prohibition of atomic and hydrogen weapons can be separated from the general problem of disarmament, can be decided independently and not made conditional on the general level of armaments," Shepilov declared.

He said prohibition of atomic and hydrogen tests could be the first step in the banning of production of nuclear weapons "and their removal from arms piles."

'UNDERSTAND CONCERN'

Shepilov spoke after the Parliament approved an appeal addressed to other parliaments to join with the Soviet lawmakers in demanding an end to the arms race and swifter progress toward disarmament.

U.S. Weighs Cutback in NATO's GIs

WASHINGTON, July 16 (UP)—The United States is actively considering a gradual cut in U.S. Army troops in Europe as part of an over-all reduction in North Atlantic Treaty Organization ground forces, high U.S. officials said today.

These officials emphasized, however, that a final decision may not be reached for "several months." The Army now has between 200,000 and 250,000 men in Europe, the equivalent of about five divisions.

COSTS GROWING

Back of the reduction plan is the growing cost of atomic and other complicated modern weapons which leaves less money for foot soldiers, a belief that the same factors will force further cuts in Soviet manpower and a mounting feeling in Europe that such big NATO forces are unnecessary.

If the plan is finally approved, the western nations would put their main hope for discouraging Communist aggression—or defeating it if it should come—on the growing allied arsenal of nuclear weapons.

TOMMIES, POILUS, TOO

The plan also would call for reductions in British and French soldiers now assigned to NATO forces, these officials said. They added that it might not be necessary to use all of the 12 West German divisions now earmarked for the anti-Communist forces.

Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, retiring supreme allied commander in Europe, has strongly opposed any substantial reduction in NATO forces that might result in a partial withdrawal of U.S. forces.

There was no indication how many U.S. troops would be brought home from Europe—or when—under the proposed program. But officials emphasized that any withdrawal would be gradual.

Deadlocked Steel Parley Is Recessed

PITTSBURGH, July 16 (AP)—Steel contract negotiators held another session today and management spokesmen announced a recess in the talks until Wednesday afternoon so that the industry "can consider the whole picture again."

The announcement came from John A. Stephens, vice president of U. S. Steel Corp. and chief management spokesman at the negotiations. He told newsmen that there was no progress made in the talks today.

Leaders of the 650,000 United Steelworkers remained behind after the conference with management ended, and apparently were talking with the team of federal mediators who sat in on the final 30 minutes of today's session.

Illinois Probe Sees GOP's Hodge Quit Auditor's Post

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 16 (AP)—State Auditor Orville E. Hodge resigned from office today in the face of mounting charges about more than a half-million dollars worth of "questionable" state checks.

Hodge also bowed to party demands that he get off the Republican ticket for reelection.

Gov. William G. Stratton, who had announced loss of party and popular faith in Hodge, disclosed the twin developments at a news conference.

GOP HOPES JARRED

The Hodge case has shaken Republican state politics and jarred GOP hopes of carrying the state ticket and Illinois' 27 electoral votes for President Eisenhower this fall.

Stratton held a half-hour conference with Hodge before making the announcement and gained Hodge's resignations in writing, Stratton said.

Hodge also said he is bowing out as an Illinois delegate to the Republican National Convention in San Francisco.

CONCEDES DEFEAT

Hodge, a dapper, gregarious downstate businessman who made a small fortune in real estate before turning politician, emerged from the conference with the words "I'm beat."

He was driven from the governor's mansion in Stratton's state-owned limousine, chauffeured by a state policeman.

Stratton said he will name two separate men to fill the state auditor's office and to take Hodge's place on the GOP ticket. Hodge had been nominated for a second term as Stratton's running mate without opposition in the GOP primary this spring.

GRAND JURY PROBE

As Stratton made his announcement, a Sangamon County grand jury met to investigate the case in the historic courthouse where Abraham Lincoln once served as a state legislator.

State's Attorney George P. Couttrakon has said that 42 checks issued by Hodge's office totalling $532,314 were cashed under "questionable" circumstances.

Many of the persons listed as payees of the checks say they did not receive any money. Estimates of the total number of "questionable" checks run as high as one million dollars.

CLEMSON, S.C., July 16 (AP)—Clemson College has received an application from a Negro who asks to be admitted to the college's textile chemistry school next February, registrar Kenneth N. Vickery said today. Clemson has never had a Negro student.

The applicant gave his name as John L. Gainey, presently of the 163rd Transportation and Truck Company at Ft. Sill, Okla., but whose home is Cheraw, S.C. Dr. R. F. Poole, Clemson president, said the college would "abide by the laws of the state" and that as a matter of normal procedure such an application would be referred to legal counsel. Senate Okays Sobeloff Judgeship As Russell, Dixie Bloc Lose, 64-19

WASHINGTON, July 16 (AP)—The Senate tonight confirmed President Eisenhower's nomination of Simon E. Sobeloff to be a judge of the Fourth Federal Circuit Court of Appeals.

The roll-call vote, overcoming Southern opposition which had blocked the appointment for a year, was 64-19. It followed hours of vigorous debate on the floor today, and months of behind-the-scenes maneuvering.

The Fourth Circuit Court covers Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the Carolinas. Sobeloff is now solicitor general in the Justice Department, handling government cases before the Supreme Court. He is a former chief judge of the Maryland Court of Appeals.

Opposition to his nomination was based principally on the contention of a group of Southern senators that Sobeloff is "prejudiced" against the South on the school segregation issue.

Sen. A. Willis Robertson (D-Va.) charged that President Eisenhower is trying to force upon a section of the South a federal judge "offensive to a majority of the people... he will serve." Robertson and some other Southern senators called the nomination "obnoxious."

Robertson's speech was interrupted by Sen. Russell (D-Ga.), who said Sobeloff never would have been confirmed if his name had been submitted by former Presidents Franklin D. Roosevelt or Truman.

In such cases, Russell said caustically, Republican senators would have assailed the nominee "practically unanimously" as a "New Deal judge who believes in judicial supremacy."

Russell said it appeared to him that Robertson had established that Sobeloff believed the federal courts have legislative powers.

Thus if the Senate votes to confirm the nomination, he said, it will mean it accedes to the view that "it is in a secondary position to the judiciary," and "will be doing this with its eyes open."

Republicans and Northern Democrats defended Sobeloff as an able, patriotic man of integrity and said his confirmation had been withheld too long.

The vote on confirmation came after Sen. Eastland (D-Miss.) had denounced Sobeloff as "an extreme leftwinger."

"He is right on the borderline of the Red philosophy, and that is the kindest thing that can be said about him," the Mississippi senator said.

A last-ditch move by Sen. Olin D. Johnston (D-SC) to kill the nomination by sending it back to the Senate Judiciary Committee, which Eastland heads, was defeated by a 63-20 roll-call vote.

Eisenhower first submitted the nomination on July 14, 1955, but Congress adjourned the following month with the nomination bottled tightly in the Judiciary Committee.

The President renominated him last Jan. 12, and the Judiciary Committee finally approved on June 29.

Thirty-five Republicans and 29 Democrats voted to confirm Sobeloff. Fifteen Democrats and four Republicans voted "no."

The nomination was the most hotly disputed of any submitted by Eisenhower this session.

NEW CONSULAR AGENT—Michael Hack, Atlanta architect, Monday was confirmed by the State Department as the first Swiss consular agent in this city. He will handle trade and industry between Switzerland and the U.S., under authority of the Swiss consulate in New Orleans. He came here in 1949.

Aldermen Okay Mayer Plant Here

By HERMAN HANCOCK

Atlanta aldermen Monday approved construction of the first unit of a multi-million-dollar, Oscar Mayer Packing Co plant and then set the stage for a court battle by ordering assessment paving for a 5,100-foot stretch of Perry boulevard, NW.

The aldermen voted 14 to one to permit the packing plant to be built on a 14-acre tract off Huff road, NW.

The most heated battle in recent months marked the decision to pave Perry boulevard and assess the costs against property owners. Ald. Colie Whitaker announced, after the hour-long battle which he lost, that the matter would be "settled by the courts."

AT PUBLIC HEARING

Advocates and opponents of the paving paraded before the aldermen at the public hearing, as required by law, and prompted by Ald. John A. White to pass a resolution for eliminating all future hearings before the aldermanic board.

If the Legislature approves, future hearing would be held before various aldermanic committees instead of before the whole aldermanic board.

Edgar Neely, representing the Georgia Industrial Realty Co. and the Southern Railway, opposed the assessment paving proposal.

He contended the improvement would not benefit his clients, that a 6,500-foot stretch leading to the Perry low rent housing project was paid for by the city and that the new stretch is in fact an arterial highway although it was labeled as a "non-arterial boulevard." He asked that the city pay the cost.

PUTS COST AT $35,000

He said the major service would be ingress and egress to two Negro schools, Archer High and the Pitts elementary. The new paving is planned from the Perry housing project to Hollywood road.

Neely estimated the cost to his clients at $35,000, and said a portion of the road would cut his clients' holdings to so shallow a depth they could not be used.

Pearl D. Strickland presented a petition she said was signed by 20 protesting Negroes, and Whitaker vigorously opposed the proposal.

JARRELL BACKS PAVING

Miss Ira Jarrell, school superintendent, backed the paving. She said she represented 2,200 Negro students, adding the schools cannot be used without roads.

In another action, aldermen held until the Aug. 6 meeting a proposal to pave Hargis street, SE, from Jonesboro to Forest Park roads, on an assessment plan similar to the Perry boulevard undertaking.

Aldermen also asked authority to install 73 boulevard lighting fixtures on the 2 1/2-mile-long Marietta boulevard. Ald. White was author of the move. The stretch extends from Marietta street to Bolton road. The Georgia Power Co. would make the installation, White said, and the city would pay the power cost under its regular contract.

Mutilation of Dog Is Investigated

An eight-month-old dog owned by T. D. Arnold of 490 W. Paces Ferry Rd., NW., an attorney for Fulton County Criminal Court, was put to death Monday after the animal was found mutilated.

A veterinarian said the dog's injuries were definitely a "malicious act." The dog was put out of its suffering after the veterinarian told Arnold the animal could not recover.

Arnold said he planned to talk to detectives about the dog's death because, he said, the mutilator of the animal posed a threat to society if a similar attempt was made on a person.

Fire at Guest House Is Seen for Miles

Fire, which could be seen for several miles, swept through an abandoned garage apartment at 610 Peachtree Battle avenue, NW, Monday night, leaving only a charred shell.

Cause of the fire was not immediately determined. Neighbors said the roof of the two-story frame former guest house was completely in flames before the fire was discovered and reported.

The building was owned by the Ahavath Achim Congregation, according to Irving M. Galanty, board director of the congregation. The house was on what was once Chevy beats own Pikes Peak record . . . and tops all rivals including cars in every price range!

Last fall, Chevrolet broke the Pikes Peak record in a history-making pre-production test.

Chevrolet takes first, second and four of the top six places! Beats its own stock car record by a full minute and 16 seconds! Again Chevy shows the sure-fire handling qualities and great-hearted performance that make it King of the Mountain—and a safer car to drive on any road.

It happened on July 4. Running against the hottest competition in the land, Chevrolet won the Pikes Peak climb—a towering challenge open to all makes of cars.

This is far more than a blazing demonstration of power. It is unquestionable proof of Chevrolet's supreme roadability—the accuracy of Ball-Race steering, the solidity of outrigger rear springs, the traction "bite" that comes from balanced weight distribution.

There is no greater test of a car's road safety qualities than the Pikes Peak climb. For this reason any make of car would be proud to be King of the Mountain. Come in and drive the car that's won the "crown" twice in a row!

Road Board Has Great Responsibility

The reorganization of the Georgia State Highway Board comes at a time when the state and federal governments are entering upon the biggest road-building task in history.

The magnitude of the job can be understood from one remark by Gov. Griffin yesterday. He pointed out that a total of 320 million dollars would be spent on the state's roads in the next three years. That is a terrific amount of money and the board has a great responsibility.

The new board chairman, Roger Lawson, of Hawkinsville, is a young man with a splendid reputation. He already has succeeded in getting the Rural Roads Authority on its feet and the authority's bonds are being sold without difficulty. He has an opportunity for excellent service and not having been involved in too much factional politics in the past should be removed from some of the headaches that go with the job.

Another newcomer to the board is Roy Chalker, newspaper publisher of Waynesboro. Mr. Chalker will represent the Southern district on the board. He has received much praise for his handling of the parks department.

The board, of course, will have the biggest responsibility of any in the state's history. It will be subjected to heavy pressures from local and state interests. Expenditure of that much money always brings such pressures. There will be many controversies about road locations and the type of highways to be built.

Already many smaller cities and towns are concerned about the limited access feature of interstate roads. Experience of other states shows that alarm about bypassing through traffic is unjustified.

In a recent statement, Charles D. Curtis, commissioner of the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads, said that studies show that business actually improves in a town when the through traffic is taken off their principal streets. A few types of business such as filling stations lose a little at first but after several years even their business is improved. Local business interests and chambers of commerce should be practical about this. Limited and controlled access highways have proved justified in every test.

Georgia now has the chance to modernize its road system. The reorganized highway board has the responsibility of spending huge amounts of money for which the people expect their money's worth in roads. In turn, the people also should cooperate with the board in achieving that objective by not making their difficult jobs even more so.

Mr. Hoover's Sleuths Keep Standards High

At hand is the report of the Federal Bureau of Investigation for the past fiscal year. It is a remarkable tribute to its director, J. Edgar Hoover, and to all those who go to make up "The FBI."

More than 96 per cent of those brought to trial through investigations by the FBI were convicted. Even more of a tribute is the fact that 10,957 pleaded guilty, so thorough was the evidence against them.

It must be kept in mind that the FBI is not a police organization, but an investigative one. It makes no criminal charges, being merely the investigative arm of the department of justice. In addition it has been given responsibility for protecting the nation's security, as well as investigating violations of federal laws.

The record is a splendid one, quite in keeping with the reputation which Director Hoover's direction has given it through the years.

'Big Bob' Jones Dies After a Colorful Life

Robert P. Jones, whose life was so rich with friends, happiness and fun, that he could take sorrow and success in stride, is dead at 76 and the life of our town and state is the poorer.

His great pride was his son, Robert Tyre Jones. He had seen him come from a small boy with a sawed-off golf club, solemnly following club-professional Stewart Maiden about the East Lake course, to be the greatest golfer the world has known. They were good friends, as well as doting father and son.

Legion are the stories about them. The father declared that once, when the young son came in from devotedly following and imitating Maiden's swing one Sunday, he asked, "Dad, what do people who don't play golf do all day Sunday?"

It was son Robert who once helped engineer a deception which all but brought down his parent with a stroke. "Big Bob" was explosive about his golf.

He talked to the ball in words strong and sulphurous. A business tycoon, of like habits, came for an Atlanta visit. He was paired with "Big Bob" Jones. Friends took each aside before play began and informed each he was playing with a Baptist minister who would be horrified by any strong language. The two held themselves in for about five holes, each near apoplexy with pent-up emotions.

At the sixth the visitor's drive sliced into trees and he "talked" to it loudly and profanely. "Big Bob" Jones grabbed his arm, "Aren't you a preacher?" he demanded. "No," was the answer. "Aren't you?" From then on they had fun.

Few men have loved life as much as "Big Bob" Jones. And because of this he made life happier for others. He was a good lawyer and citizen, a fond husband and father. And the city is the poorer and life less fun now he has gone from us.

The Ultimate Triumph Belongs to the South

In a hands-across-the-Mason-Dixon-Line gesture, the Congress has voted that gold medals be awarded the four surviving veterans of the War Between the States, or as some would have it, the Civil War.

Each is over 100 years old, and of the four, one was a Union man and three were soldiers of the Confederacy.

Arguments over this war, its purpose and its conduct are nearly as fresh now as when it broke out nearly a century ago.

Now, 91 years after Appomattox, the Confederacy has won the final victory. Its forces outlasted those of the Union and outnumber them by three to one.

Free World Celebrates Birth of a New Nation

A new nation within the British Commonwealth quite likely will be born this summer. Now known to the world as the Gold Coast, this British territory will take the name Ghana after an ancient African kingdom when it attains self government.

The infant state lies not far north of the equator and faces south over the Gulf of Guinea. It is part of that great hump of Africa which reaches west into the Atlantic toward Brazil. It is a fabled land, for its natural resources were exploited for many decades, and its humans sold into slavery to satisfy the demands of the planters of the West Indies and the two Americas.

From oppression to freedom is a long step, and was made with the encouragement of the London government. Satisfied that the people of the Gold Coast have sufficiently developed the techniques of self-government, elections will be held to determine their constitution and future. The election and technicalities once surmounted, the old Gold Coast becomes the country of Ghana.

The British Empire anticipated the end of colonialism and set up its commonwealth of nations long ago to unite its old colonies in common allegiance to the crown. The idea worked well and from Gold Coast to Ghana is the most recent development.

It also is a neat piece of counter propaganda in the hands of the West the next time the Kremlin tries to stir up excitement over the evil colonial practices of the anti-Red nations.

Circuses Under Canvas Outlasted Their Times

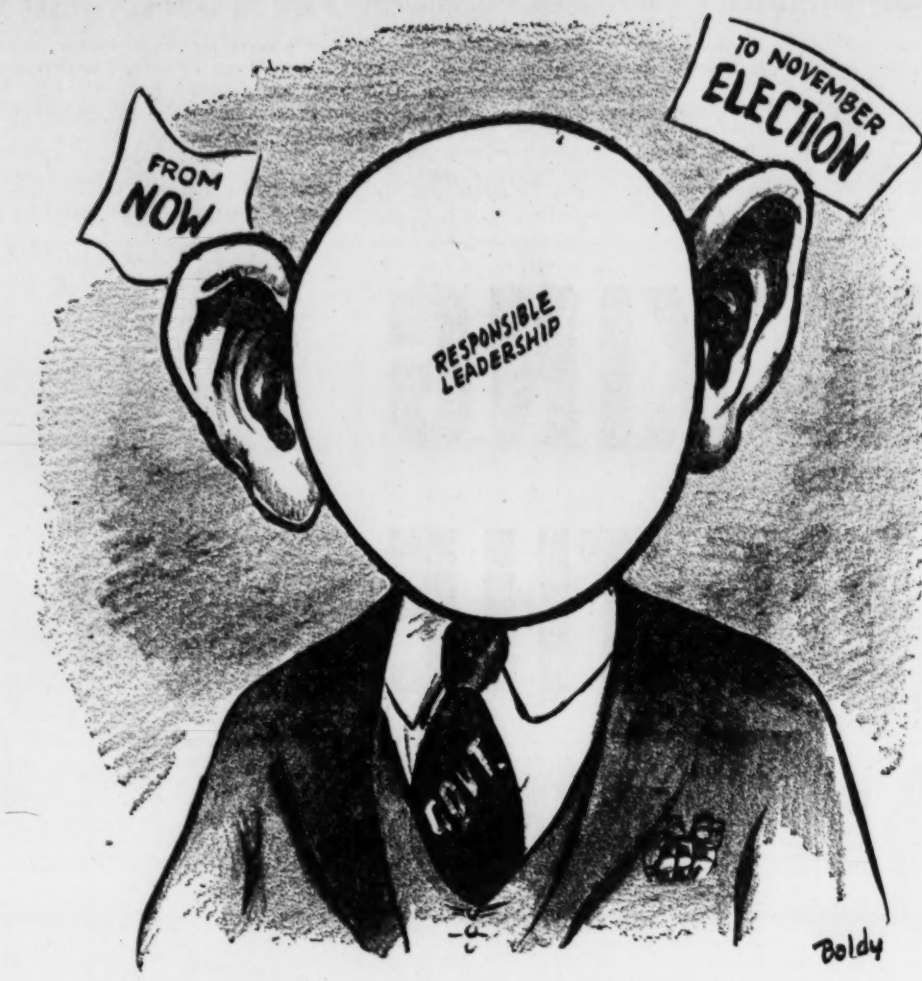

Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey, the circus to end all circuses, has called it a day for the time being.

Billing itself with considerable justification as the greatest show on earth, Ringling Brothers went on the road this spring with its big tent, its collection of animals, freaks and performers as its usual custom. Bad weather, changing times and other factors brought the announcement yesterday that the circus was cancelling its tour and returning to winter quarters in Sarasota.

"The tented circus, as it now exists, is, in my opinion, a thing of the past," explained its board chairman, John Ringling North. Mr. North said though, that this was not goodbye forever. The circus is considering a changed format to enable it to meet new tastes.

Times change and so does the public taste. The tented circus which was truly exotic and thrilling to our parents and grandparents apparently has lost its punch.

Bread and circuses are two of the necessities of life as the Caesars and their successors well knew. Circuses we have today, but not necessarily under a tent and the old big top is gone. In some form or other the circus will survive and certainly under the time-honored banner of Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey.

Indifference of the American People Baffles Teen-Ager Who Speaks Out for Her Country

Atlanta — After noticing on the Fourth that our house was the only one on the block to display a flag, I reflected soberly that when one lives in a wonderful country you often fail to realize and appreciate its lasting qualities and that it was conceived in freedom.

I think the people are sitting a little too high on their thrones these days and should hop down occasionally and not take so much for granted.

They should remember the ghosts of millions who died so that America might remain a citadel of freedom and a beacon of hope for the rest of the world.

Our people should strive to possess integrity, courage, strength and knowledge that will enable us to help the oppressed peoples of the world and keep us a leader among nations.

Though I am but 13, I look forward to the day when I can take my stand on the side of those who died that I might live.

Boy, do I thank my lucky stars I was born on this side of the Atlantic but I wonder how many people are planning to vote this fall.

Figures Are Clarified On Broom Article

Twin City—A few weeks ago you carried in your Sunday paper an interview with my 82-year-old father, B. B. Sutton Sr., about our handmade house brooms. I don't know why or how the figures got wrong but you were misinformed either through misunderstanding on my father's part or yours.

You stated that we plant 30 acres. That should have been 10 acres. You stated that it makes 500 brooms to the acre. That should have been 200 or less because it will not average 200 brooms to the acre.

We will appreciate the write-up if you will make these corrections at your earliest convenience.

'A Million Protests Wouldn't Have Helped'

Atlanta—I wonder why those people went to the trouble of going to the Public Service Commission to protest the hike in transit fares.

I realize that there was only a few but even if there had been a million their trip would have been in vain.

They shall be paying higher fares soon and it's for sure that this hike won't be the last one.

A 'Damyantee' Offers His Views on South

Athens—Thomas L. Stokes' July 9 column expressed what the majority of intelligent people outside the South, and many within Georgia, think about Herman Talmadge.

Mrs. Grace Edwards seems to feel that the Talmadges, Tom Watson and (she might have added) Marvin Griffin and Eugene Cook more truly represent Georgia than does Sen. George.

Unfortunately this opinion is widely shared throughout the country and helps to explain why Georgia is thought to be hopelessly backward. I realize that many Georgians do not care what "damyantees" think about their state.

Atomic War Is Unthinkable From Any Logical Standpoint

Recently the United States acknowledged in the U.N. that natives who were moved off Bikini, the nuclear test site in the Pacific, should not expect to return to their island for at least two generations. The presumption was, although Washington has previously denied it, that atomic and hydrogen bomb explosions had made the islands uninhabitable.

Earlier this month the National Academy of Science published the first definitive report on the dangers of radiation from atomic explosions. The academy supported the Atomic Energy Commission's claim that test explosions have not raised the level of radiation to a dangerous degree, but it verified that any atomic war would immediately change the radiation level for the entire world, making mankind more susceptible to leukemia and other cancers, eye cataracts, sterility and shortening of life.

Mutations caused by radiation—sudden biological changes, most of them bad—could also have a harmful effect for generations to come.

Newsweek Magazine now reports on the two-year study made by the Atomic Energy Commission of 64 Marshall Islanders who were exposed to severe radiation fallout from the Bikini H-bomb test of 1954. Initially a third of the islanders were intensely nauseated; later some 57 developed dark, leathery spots on their skin and their blood count dropped perilously low.

In a single dose these Marshallers received 225 roentgens, the unit used for measuring radiation, whereas the National Academy of Sciences recommended that between conception and age 30 a person receives no more than 10 roentgens to his reproductive cells.

Secretary of Defense Wilson said that "we are taking a realistic look" at the whole military picture, including new weapons.

Such a look is surely in order, both as it affects our defense from possible atomic attack and our own use of atomic weapons.

For example, take the Nike. The Army is now ringing Milwaukee and other American cities with installations for these rockets to defend against enemy air attack. But the range of the Nike is something over 25 miles.

How much better than popguns would these weapons be if a remorseless enemy preferred to scatter atomic bombs miles downwind so that the radioactive clouds would spread not only over the target but the surrounding countryside, sickening the population and poisoning the whole area so that it would be uninhabitable?

How practical is our policy of massive retaliation if the radiation let loose endangered not only the enemy but imperiled ourselves and the population of the rest of the world—and not only the living but the millions still unborn?

President Eisenhower has said atomic warfare is unthinkable. He is right. Yet we go on building weapons helter-skelter and taking "realistic looks" that are not realistic.

The look that needs to be taken is the overall look—not by military planners, but by statesmen and men of science.

There's No Secret About Relaxation

Here is an alarming statement by a medical doctor: "American business and professional men are not living out their normal life expectancy." The tension and pressure of these troublesome times, the pace of American life, worry and uncertainty are working havoc among these men of 40 and more. They are dying altogether too young. Heart disease, high blood pressure, arterial disease, nervous disorder, cancer, intestinal trouble are the worst enemies of America's men of responsibility.

We know how to control the germ-caused diseases such as typhoid, scarlet fever, diphtheria, smallpox and tuberculosis; but the degenerative diseases which come about because of age of the individual plus wrong living habits, too much work, strain, stress, too little rest and relaxation, are the troubles which are mowing down so many valuable people. Twenty-five per cent of all deaths of men over 50 years of age is due to hypertension.

Another physician said this: "When I began my practice of medicine, men were breaking down in their 60s, then later in their 50s, now in their 40s. We used to think of a man as a chemical organism. Just as you would shoot a little oil into a machine to correct the difficulty, we used to think if we shot a little medicine into a man, or cut here or there we could cure him. But now we have discovered that the thing that produces tension is wrong thinking. Unfortunately we have never been able to develop a scalpel with which we can enter the tangled ramifications of a man's mind and operate on that which is causing the mischief."

Listen to one other physician: "Many patients with upset stomachs are not victims of tainted food. They are the victims of tainted thoughts. Not a few patients with skin eruptions have no infection. They are letting mental worries get under their skin."

Tension is a disease which touches nearly every adult life in America today. Many tense people have come to talk with me. The first thing I notice is they sit in the chair as if they thought it would fall any moment. They seem afraid to let go and trust their weight to the chair.

An old Negro woman, explaining her relaxed state, said, "I have learned to sit loose."

Also, tension is evidenced by the hands. As long as you keep your hands relaxed, you can maintain a certain amount of self-control.

The Bible says, "A soft answer turneth away wrath" (Proverbs 15:1). Also, when one is tense if he or she will hold the voice down to soft tones, it is like holding the reins tight on a horse that wants to run away.

But actually, tension is the result of wrong thought processes and the only way to cure a wrong thought is through the substitution of right and stronger thoughts. This we will consider further to-morrow.

Trade Unions Warn Of Reds' Intentions

WASHINGTON—The free trade unions are providing realistic insight into the efforts of the Kremlin to appear as liberalizing reformers by giving up some of the worst abuses of Stalin's 30 years' war against the freedom of the Soviet people. While many leaders of the Western governments, including some of our own, are indulging in wishful thinking about the Khrushchev "reforms," free labor is speaking out with clarity against the temptation to be taken in by the surface changes.

There is every evidence that the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions, which gets some of its sternest motto from the American AFL-CIO, is continuing to stand firmly against the deceptive "united front" appeals from the Soviet Union.

It is the politicians, not the labor leaders, who are enticed by the Khrushchev bait.

Now comes an invaluable study of the Khrushchev speech—which was ultimately made public, not by Moscow but by the U.S. government—from the Free Trade Union Committee whose honorary president is George Meany and whose executive secretary is Jay Lovestone.

It seems to me to be more perceptive and persuasive than anything which has come from any other source.

The Free Trade Union Committee study makes the following central points and I think they deserve to be kept as the touchstone of our appraisal of the new Khrushchev line and as the premises of Western policy:

1. Just as the Kremlin's "new look" does not abandon Soviet imperialism, "so the united front tactics do not signify a renunciation of the ultimate goal of international communism: the establishment of a one-party totalitarian dictatorship in all countries."

2. In judging Moscow's devotion to the cause of world peace it is important to bear in mind that during the popular-front tactics of the mid-'30s, "the Communists also proclaimed that war could be prevented through a 'peace movement,' but this did not prevent Moscow from signing in 1939 the Stalin-Hitler pact which gave Hitler the green light for starting World War II."

Republicans Defeat President's Program

WASHINGTON—When President Eisenhower reached into Congress and picked Rep. Charles W. Halleck of Indiana, second ranking Republican, leader in the House of Representatives, to nominate him for a second term at the San Francisco convention next month, he was making a gesture denoting the friendship that has developed between the two.

But this choice was recognized as having also a political purpose of which National Chairman Leonard W. Hall, who announced it after a conference with the President at Gettysburg, would be fully aware.

It is in the form of a dramatic handclasp for the nationwide television audience between the Republican Party in Congress and the President on the eve of another campaign. A charitable comment is that such is certainly needed. This act of conciliation emphasizes the weakness that it presumably is supposed to conceal. That is the repeated failure of a majority of Republican members of House and Senate to follow their President.

So graphically is that being illustrated right down toward the wire of President Eisenhower's first four years in the White House—as it was from the very beginning—that Democrats now are seizing the incongruity as a major issue both in this year's presidential and congressional election campaigns.

As for the President, the tack they are taking is that it exhibits a lack of leadership on his part. As for Congress, the Democratic line is that it has been Democrats who have saved the President on the numerous issues both foreign and domestic and in both the Republican 83rd and the Democratic 84th Congresses, which is the fact

Georgians in House Rap Ike's Rights Bill in Debate

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS
Constitution Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, July 16—Georgia congressmen joined with other Southern members today in delivering a blistering attack on the administration-supported civil rights bill as debate on the controversial measure opened in the lower house.

Rep. Paul Brown, veteran Elberton member, declared the measure, while "labeled with the protective innocence of civil rights," actually would destroy the right to trial by jury.

On a speech prepared for delivery on the floor, Brown charged the bill was politically inspired in a presidential election year in the hope of getting the votes of Negroes and other minority groups.

Another scathing attack on the measure was made on the floor by Rep. E. L. (Tic) Forrester of Leesburg, who as a member of the Judiciary Committee has been designated floor leader of the Georgia group in its opposition to the legislation. He vigorously fought the bill when it was before his committee.

Brown, in his prepared speech, said: "These unjust proposals are born of expediency upon the recommendation of political strategists, and employ the forces of fear and intimidation to impose the will of outside pressure upon the South and others who do not conform to their existing pattern of thinking on the establishment of a new social order.

"Social relationships are matters for personal choice and should not be subject to regulation by court decree or government edict."

Charging that the legislation, if adopted, would result in the abandonment of the state jury system, the Elberton congressman added:

"There would be brought into being a medium of enforcement limited not by law but by the conscience and judgment of the Department of Justice. The government would have the unprecedented authority to summon private citizens into federal court on mere suspicions at the instigation of the attorney general, a procedure which a government of free people should seek to suppress rather than endorse."

Forrester told the House that after an exhaustive study of the subject he and other sober-minded persons are convinced that no civil rights legislation is needed to protect the interests of minority groups.

"Those who have read the minority report on this legislation," he said, "have been shocked by the numerous and comprehensive civil rights statutes already on the books. Every person who is deprived of any of his rights under the Constitution and laws, under color of law, is afforded a civil action."

Pre-Convention Caucus Is Endorsed by Griffin

Gov. Griffin Monday endorsed the proposal to hold a Southern caucus prior to the Democratic national convention.

He suggested the meeting be held in Chicago the day before the convention begins.

Griffin thus became the first Southern governor to make a definite commitment on the caucus plan put forward by Southern party chairmen here last week.

The idea previously had been suggested by South Carolina Gov. Timmerman, so it seems certain to meet his approval.

Gov. Luther Hodges of North Carolina said Monday he has not yet seen the statement but "I rather favor the idea."

Other Southern leaders endorsing the pre-convention caucus included Bob Sikes, chairman of the Florida delegation, Judge George Wallace and Laurie Battle of Alabama, H. S. Walters of Tennessee, and State Sen. R. M. Jefferies of South Carolina, a member of the convention platform and resolutions committee.

Arkansas State Chairman Tom Harper, who was unable to attend the Atlanta conference, said the caucus proposal was "very interesting." The state's delegation will be selected next Saturday and will study the proposal at that time, he said.

Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas, chairman of his state's delegation, said he has made no commitments on taking part in the caucus and would make none.

In agreeing to the unity caucus plan Monday, Griffin plugged for a meeting at the convention city one day after the full program.

Griffin said this would be the best way to insure full attendance at the caucus. He added, however, that if an earlier meeting is desired by other Southerners, "I would be glad to entertain them here."

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery

Finds Healing Substance That Does Both—Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

New York, N. Y. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain—without surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne*)—the discovery of a world-famous research institution. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H.* Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

WASHOUT AT LAKEWOOD—An eight-foot chunk of the race track at Lakewood was washed out with the heavy rains Sunday. About 75 feet of the track was damaged when the small lake filled up and overflowed into the large lake in the middle of the track. Repair costs have been estimated at $1,000, but track officials say the repairs will probably be completed for the Labor Day races.

6 Magazines Are Defended Here at Obscenity Hearing

Magazines which have been listed in complaints as being obscene and offensive were defended by attorneys Monday before the State Literature Commission.

Osgood Williams, representing five magazines, defended them by saying the public figures exposed in the publications "should be exposed."

Several of the magazines listed in the complaints have some of the finest writers in America as contributors, Williams told the commission headed by Dr. James P. Wesberry.

The attorney led his testimony by declaring the act under which the commission was set up is unconstitutional because it is discriminatory.

"We are not here to discuss that," Chairman Wesberry said. "Please stick to the complaints."

Williams also argued that the power of the commission to send letters to the publications threatening them with court action if the magazines did not disappear from the stands was "like holding a hammer over the heads of the publishers."

George Stewart, representing another magazine, said his clients were anxious to "do what is right." Stewart brought State Rep. John D. Odom of Camden County as a witness for the magazine. Odom said he was personally acquainted with the publishers of the magazine and knew they were "fine church-going people."

Others appearing before the commission were Morris B. Abram, representing the Atlanta News Agency, and Mrs. Lilly M. Dill, 572 Capitol Ave., who said she is interested in removing some publications from the stands.

Rubbish Crews Tackle Mud Dips

Sanitary Engineer Stafford Graydon Monday said collection of all yard rubbish has been suspended for the week so that sanitary forces can remove "mud dips from city streets caused by recent heavy rains."

Graydon said the rains have washed so much mud and other debris into low places that streets have become impassable at 16 points.

4th District Candidates in DeKalb To Debate July 31

A political forum for candidates R. Meador, Redan Civic Club; Foy, Julian Harris, W. A. State Rep. Fred Bentley of Marietta for the DeKalb County Commission secretary, said Monday night. Housworth, George W. Peerin, etta has been invited to moderate. The eight men in the race include John R. Thompson, James R. W. Marbut Blackmon, John Wes Venable and John B. White. The program to be held in the Redan school auditorium, Meador said. It will begin at 8 p.m.

The fourth district, in the southeastern part of the county, includes the towns of Clarkston, Stone Mountain and Lithonia. All citizens living in the district have been invited.

Portocarrero Stops Vols on Four-Hitter

Papai, Chicks Beat Bears;
Rebels Edge Pelicans, 8-6

Compiled From Constitution Wire Reports
Arnold Portocarrero shut out Nashville, 2-0, with a four-hit pitching job for the Birmingham Barons Monday night on the Barons' home field.

In other Southern Assn. games, a pair of clutch singles by Jim Landis and a tight six-hit pitching performance by veteran Al Papai sparked Memphis to a 3-1 victory over Mobile and Montgomery's Rebels stopped New Orleans, 8-6.

Both Birmingham runs came in the second inning when Hal Grote singled, took second on Gerald Mackay's fielder's choice, and tallied when Portocarrero hit into a double play. Milt Graff followed with a single to score Mackay.

Starter Arthur Murray and three other New Orleans pitchers issued

Davis Strikes Out 17 In Tifton PL Victory

League baseball tournament got under way here Monday night.

Through six innings of his duel with Rome "B" batsmen, Davis had accounted for 17 of 18 outs via the whiff route, and might have added three more when pounding rains finished the game an inning early with Tifton leading, 6-4. He walked two.

Cincinnati Calls Off Deal For Vols' Brown

CINCINNATI, July 16 (AP)—An injured arm suffered by Tommy Brown caused the Cincinnati Reds today to call off a deal by which the former major league would have been sent here by Nashville of the Southern Association.

Jim Dyck, utility infielder-outfielder, who was sent to Nashville in a swap for Brown, was ordered to report back to Cincinnati.

Hodges Homer Lifts Bums Over Cubs, 4-1

Rain Halts Game After Six As Craig Posts Ninth Win

CHICAGO, July 16 (AP)—Rain cut the Brooklyn Dodgers' work day to six innings today, but that was still enough time for the home champions to take a 4-1 verdict over the Chicago Cubs before the largest Wrigley Field crowd of the season—a ladies' day turnout of 35,958.

Gil Hodges used his No. 19 homer, his second in two days, to cement the decision in the first inning.

Loser Sam Jones, who yielded three hits to winner Roger Craig's total of two in the bob-tailed contest, issued two of his seven walks before Hodges hammered his homer high and far over the left field wall.

The winners' fourth run in a sweep of a two-game series came across in the fifth. Junior Gilliam opened with a triple and scored on Carl Furillo's single.

Craig missed turning his ninth win into a shutout when the Cubs scored their lone run in the third. Catcher Harry Chitt walked and stopped at second on Jones' line single to right.

Chitt went to third on Don Hoak's force play roller, and scored as Chico Fernandez was throwing out Gene Baker. Baker, the Cubs' second baseman, was banished after a fifth-inning argument with Umpire Art Gore for throwing his bat in the air.

Aaron's Homer Wins
MILWAUKEE, July 16 (AP)—Henry Aaron blasted his 11th homer of the year in the fourth inning today to break a 1-1 tie and give the National League-leading Milwaukee Braves a 2-1 decision over the Pittsburgh Pirates and a string of seven straight victories.

The victory, right-handed Bob Buhl's 11th against four defeats, made it a clean sweep of a three-game series and eight in a row for the Braves over the team that has been a jinx for the Milwaukeeans for the last two seasons.

Bums in Rebellion, But Alston Likes 'Em That Way

CHICAGO, July 16 (AP)—Manager Walter Alston said today he "probably did" call his Brooklyn Dodgers "gutless" while they were losing four straight at Milwaukee last weekend.

Alston was asked to comment on a report by Brooklyn baseball writers that there was a rift between him and his players which was so serious that it might lead to open rebellion.

"Alston, here with the Brooklyn team for a series with the Chicago Cubs, was asked whether or not he called the players 'gutless' and unable to withstand pressure between games of a two-night double-header at Milwaukee last week.

"Yes, I probably did," he said. "I've said lots of things in the clubhouse. When you're losing you're apt to say a lot of things you wouldn't when you're winning.

"If I said it, and frankly I don't remember what I said, I'm happy now that somebody got mad about my words. That is what we need: Somebody to get mad and give that added extra effort that's the difference between winning and losing.

"I'll say something else: When I popped off in the clubhouse at Milwaukee it wasn't the first time I've had something to say to the players. I can remember some six or seven other such sessions so the popping off at Milwaukee wasn't anything new.

"And there'll probably be more. Who knows what a fellow is going to say when he's mad after losing the kind of games we've been losing of late."

Leonard Koppett, writing in the New York Post, called it a split—possibly beyond repair.

"Walter Alston is dissatisfied with his Dodgers ball club," Koppett wrote, "and his ball club is even more bitterly disappointed with him. . . .

It's gone far enough for some to feel that the sooner Alston is gone the better off the Dodgers will be."

Dick Young of the New York Daily News, who broke the story, wrote that the Dodgers players became angry with Alston when he gathered them in the clubhouse after Friday night's opening-game loss to Milwaukee and called them "choke-up guys," among other things.

"I don't think you can play under pressure," Young reported Alston as having told his players. "If this doesn't stop, I'm going to call up a bunch of kids and play them, and sit down all the stars."

Nobody rose to challenge Alston, and nobody even raised a voice of protest, according to Young, but several of them got up and walked away, to the other end of the clubhouse, so as not to listen to their manager.

"I can't deny I told them off," Koppett quoted

Alston as saying. "I don't recall saying they were gutless but if I did say it I shouldn't have. I've tried everything—I tried encouraging them and I tried being tough."

The third-place Dodgers, five games off the pace, have at no time played like the world champions they are.

"Getting us mad isn't going to win ball games," an unidentified Dodger player said. "If we're going to hit, we're going to hit, that's all. It's true we haven't been doing very well but neither has he. We think he pulls too many rocks."

"What kind of morale building do you call it when your manager accuses you of being a chokeup, and yelling about you job," another unidentified Dodger told Koppett. "We won the pennant and World Series for him last year and we've proved we can play under pressure. How is it going to help us to have him show such lack of confidence in us?"

STAN THE MAN SHOWS HE'S GOOD IN STRETCH Musial Holds Weapon Feared by National League's Top Pitchers

Musial Grabs National Lead

NEW YORK, July 16 (AP)—Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals, who usually lets his bat do his talking for him, is making good on a spring training prediction.

The 35-year-old stalwart confided to friends in St. Petersburg, Fla., last March that he expected to nail down his seventh National League hitting title this season. He figured he would hit between .340 and .350 and that would be sufficient to win the crown.

Musial is starting to make his move and has spurred into the league lead with a .327 average, one point more than Cincinnati's Ed Bailey. Figures include games through Sunday.

If Stan the Man can carry out his prophecy and annex his seventh championship, it will tie him with Rogers Hornsby as a seven-time winner. Musial then will be within striking distance of Honus Wagner's feat of eight titles.

The slender outfielder-first baseman captured his last crown in 1952, hitting .336. In 13 seasons with the Redbirds, the stylish southpaw swinger boasts a .342 lifetime average and needs 303 more hits to reach the elite 3,000-hit circle.

Musial gained 19 points during the week in advancing from sixth place. He delivered 12 hits in 20 trips—a 600 clip. Bailey fell into second at .326, losing 9 points on 2-for-11.

Red Schoendienst of the New York Giants, Musial's roommate for many years until the Cards traded him a month ago, jumped to third at .321. He collected nine hits in 20 trips and boosted his average 15 points.

Ken Boyer of the Cards and Milwaukee's Hank Aaron are tied for fourth with .319. Boyer lost 2 points last week, while Aaron was raising his mark 9 points.

Mickey Mantle of the New York Yankees maintains his American League supremacy with a .265 average with Detroit's Charley Maxwell trailing at .252. Mantle went 5-for-18 and suffered a 6-point decline. Maxwell dropped 9 points on 5-for-20.

The Tigers' Harvey Kuenn remains third with a .349 average, followed by George Kell of Baltimore in fourth with .330.

Musial also is the National League runs batted in pace setter with 69 and Cincinnati's Ted Kluszewski heads the home run derby with 23. Mantle continues to lead the American League in homers with 30 and RBI's with 74.

Red McIntyre Battles Zebra

The Zebra Kid, a 260-pound human tank, matches holds with Red McIntyre in the feature event of Friday's wrestling show at the City Auditorium. The match will carry a 60-minute time limit or one fall.

Semi-headliner pits Gene "Mr. America" Stanlee against the Irish strongman, Timothy Goehagan. Stanlee is famed for his pile driver tactics, outlawed in Georgia. This hold has cost him two previous Atlanta matches.

Two other events complete the card, which starts at 8:30 p.m.

Keep on swinging through and you'll practically splash the ball out of the sand. You need very little knee and hip action for this shot, but you do use a pretty good turn of the shoulders and a snappy hand-hit into the sand, with no brakes on the follow through.

Young Atlanta Netters Fan Out for Action

Neelys Off to Kentucky State; Henry Plays in Clay Nationals

By LARRY FOX

Led by the Neely brothers, who embarked on a four-tournament swing Monday morning, Atlanta's promising contingent of young tennis players will be well represented around the nation this summer.

The Neelys, Ned a 16-year-old junior and Mike a 14-year-old competitor in the boys' division, will play in the Kentucky State Junior Championships at Louisville starting Tuesday, and, in successive weeks, the Western Junior and Boys at Champaign, Ill., the National Junior and Boys at Kalamazoo, Mich., and the National Jaycee Tournament at Oak Park, Ill.

Ned won the Western and National Boys titles last year and this is his first campaign as a junior.

Crawford Henry, just graduated from the junior ranks with his 19th birthday this spring, jumps from the Western Tournament, men's style, at Indianapolis, to the National Clay Courts at Chicago this week. Henry will compete later this summer in the National Doubles (grass courts) at Longwood Cricket Club, Chestnut Hills, Mass., Aug. 20-26.

He will team there with Art Andrews of Iowa City, Iowa, another rookie in the men's division with whom he has scored some notable successes already. There is an outside chance that Henry, a Tulane student, will compete at Forest Hills in the Nationals.

Harry Thompson, at 18 in his last year as a junior, will join the Neelys in the field for both the Nationals and the Jaycee Tournaments. Thompson was ousted in the second round of the National Juniors last year by the second-seeded entry. He will team with Ben Keys of Greenville, S.C., in the doubles there and with Ned Neely in the Jaycee pairs.

The Lenoir brothers of Athens will also make the two big tournaments. Carter will play in the National Juniors and Billy will play in the boys' divisions of both the Nationals and the Jaycee event. He will play doubles with Mike Neely as Georgia's younger representatives in the Jaycee event.

Another entry from Atlanta at Kalamazoo is expected to be 13-year-old Speed Howell in the boys' division.

Lookouts, Pelicans Pack Star Openers

Cassini Bats Own Dickens In Cleanup, Lags on Hurlers

MEMPHIS, July 16 (AP)—The Southern Assn. All-Star starting lineup was brewed today with a Chattanooga flavor on the bases and a New Orleans tang to the outfield.

Three Chattanooga Lookouts anchor the infield: Bob Oldis behind the plate, Stan Rosboro at third and Lyle Luttrell at shortstop.

Nashville's Larry Taylor will hold down second, with Buck Riddle of Atlanta at first. The starting pitcher won't be named until tomorrow.

In the outfield, Memphis' Gip Dickens will patrol center, flanked by two New Orleans operatives—John Powers in right and Emil Panko in left.

The All-Star squad tangles with league-leading Birmingham on the Barons' home field Wednesday night. The dream team will be masterminded by Jack Cassini. He's automatically manager because his Chicks won last year's pennant.

Cassini picked one of his own, Dickens, for the cleanup spot in the batting order, which goes like this: Taylor, Roseboro, Powers,

Delayed Opening On Loop Agenda

BIRMINGHAM, July 16 (AP)—Opening and closing dates of the 1957 season are expected to provoke major discussion when Southern Assn. directors meet Wednesday.

Such dates usually are set at the meeting, held in conjunction with the league All-Star game. Atlanta President Earl Mann has proposed that the season start later to avoid bad weather that has cursed the April end of the schedule.

Coming up for discussion will be the appointment of a schedule-maker, television, financial assistance to the widow of Empire Gray Holcombe, who died last week of injuries received while traveling between assignments, and renewal of the Dixie Series contract with the Texas League.

first 12 Lookouts in order, before surrendering two runs in the fifth. Lyle Luttrell's double on the heels of a walk to Jess Levan and a subsequent ground-out rang up the first one. Guy Morton hoisted a sacrifice fly to plate Luttrell.

Back-to-back homers by Dan Jels and Meeks in the seventh upped the Cracker margin to 5-2, but neither Mosser nor the lead lasted through the eighth.

Morton's homer started the four-run comeback. After Bob Oldis beat out an infield hit, pinch-hitter Stan Roseboro and Dan Porter singled to load the bases. Bruce Barnes' out banked one run. Mosser uncorked a wild pitch for another and Crawford Davidson doubled for a 6-5 edge.

Vogel curbed the rally and Boring knotted the score with his lead homer in the eighth, the first safety off Van Cuyk.

Vogel and Van Cuyk then dueled down the overtime stretch, until the "Ace" officially announced his return to duty.

Vic Rehm (8-9) will shoot for a Cracker sweep of the four-game set Tuesday night. He'll be opposed by Lookout ace, lefty Bob Ross (8-2).

MY FINEST FISHING DAY MYSTERY OF INLAND TARPON STILL BAFFLES BOBBY DODD

(Another in a series of articles on the greatest fishing thrills of people familiar to all Georgians.)

By BILL ALLEN

Georgia Tech coach Bobby Dodd's greatest single achievement so far as fishing is concerned was his 13-pound, one-ounce bass taken this year at Callaway's down at Chipley.

Since Dodd is first and always a bass fisherman, that will always be his finest fishing day. It already has been covered in these pages—and elsewhere. Rivaling it, however, in the Tech coach's memory is a day down in Florida when he fished in "the strangest lake in the world."

Dodd and his line coach, Ray Graves, were knocking around in south Florida near Everglades City, hunting out-of-the-way bass haunts when they ran into an old Negro guide who promised them the very best in fishing.

He led them to a small hole in the ground called "Deep Lake."

It is herein described as a hole in the ground because Dodd and Graves looked at one another askance upon seeing this gift-described spot. It was all of three or four acres in area.

They got out there in a boat and began fishing in this inland, fresh water lake, and Dodd re-

BOBBY DODD

A Tunnel or a Hurricane

calls that they caught some bass. "We caught bass, alligators and . . ." here Dodd pauses when telling the tale, "we hung a few tarpon. . . ."

"Wait a minute," the object of the story always interrupts. "Thought you said this was an inland, fresh water lake. . . ."

"Tarpon, up to 100 pounds at least," Dodd plows through the stammered interruption to his climax. Then he sits back and smiles like an undernourished Buddha.

"Up to 100 pounds," he re-

peats. "We didn't land any of them, of course."

Dodd has become accustomed to hearing people asking if he's sure they weren't gar, or if he might not be mistaken about the size of the lake.

"They were tarpon all right. Our tackle loss that day will speak for that. Big ones—the size they get at Tampa and Islamorada. And all we wanted was bass. It was a spring-fed lake, and had no visible connection with salt water, so Ray and I assumed there must be an underground passage between there and salt water," Dodd surmised.

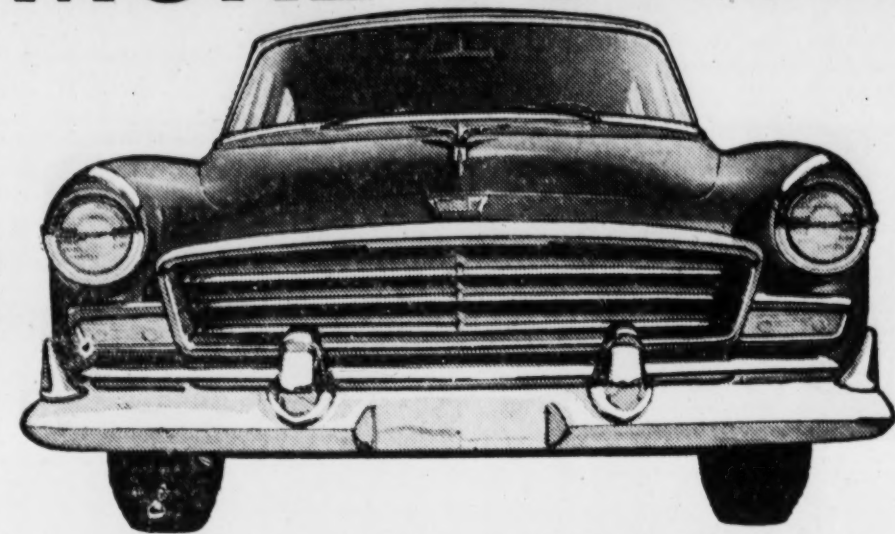

But he found out later that the natives claim the tarpon got into Deep Lake during a hurricane many years ago.

Dodd said that nobody has ever gotten a sinker to touch the bottom of the lake, according to his guide. It is supposed to be Florida's deepest pond, and no one has come along yet to look down there and tell for true whether it has an underground passageway to the ocean or not.

But the tarpon and the big bass are still in there, according to the boss of the Yellow Jackets who recently passed by Deep Lake.

It's posted, too, and closed to the public—one of nature's imponderables that gave Dodd his most unusual day of fishing.

State Golf Qualifying Begins at East Lake

Goodloe To Defend Championship; Dahlbender Fires 69 in Practice

By BERT PRATHER

The cream of Georgia's amateur golfers were gathering at East Lake Country Club Monday. By late Tuesday afternoon practically all the challengers for Dynamite Billy Goodloe's state crown were expected to be on hand.

Qualifying for the championship division is scheduled for Wednesday over the Lake's famous old No. 1 course, but officials, anticipating an unusually large field, have asked all local players not shooting for championship flight to sign up and qualify Tuesday.

This will avoid congestion on Wednesday when the bulk of out-of-towners and championship candidates make their pitch for qualifying places.

Big Gene Dahlbender Jr., who has won the Southern Amateur and practically everything else around these parts except the State; Augusta's Cobby Ware, who won his second State Junior championship last Saturday at Athens Country Club, and Mickey Gallagher Jr., of Augusta, were among title candidates playing practice rounds Monday. Dahlbender recorded a 35-4—69, two under par for the course. He eagled the par five ninth hole.

Southern Amateur champion Arnold Blum, of Macon; former Southern kings George Hamer, Columbus, Charles Harrison and Tommy Barnes are expected to be among the starters along with former state titlists Jack Key Jr., Columbus; Bill Zimmerman, Columbus; Dick Hackett, Rome, and Frank Mulherin Jr., Augusta. Barnes, Blum and Hamer are also former State winners.

Heading the younger stars will be Ware, Cecil Calhoun, Columbus; Bobby Dunn, Camilla; Jack Lumpkin, Athens; Jake Howard Jr., Jimmy Raines, Joe Steinberg, Larry McCrary, Bob Moser and Sam Mays, all of Augusta; Jimmy Allen and Eddie Sams, Athens; Bobby Pierce, Atlanta junior champion, Tommy Aaron, state Open champ from Gainesville and Joel Finkelstein, Savannah.

First round match play starts Thursday morning. The champion will be crowned after Sunday's 36 holes.

Bryant Leads Rome Juniors By Dalton 2

Special to The Constitution
SHANNON, July 16—Ken Bryant, three-sport terror for Rome High School, powered two lusty triples Monday to lead Rome Post 1 to a 6-2 decision over Dalton No. 2 in the second round of the District Seven American Legion Junior Baseball Tournament.

The decision dumped Dalton No. 2 into the loser's bracket of this double-elimination meet. Rome joined Smyrna and Pepperell in the unbeaten circle.

Dalton No. 1 kept its title chances alive by eliminating Brighton, 3-1, behind the 19-strikeout performance of lefty Sherrill Whitfield.

Tuesday's schedule sends the two once-beaten Dalton Posts against each other at 5:30 p.m., and unbeaten Pepperell and Smyrna lock horns at 8 o'clock.

TOO GOOD FOR WORDS

ATLANTA'S FIRST CHOICE FOR SAVINGS

'Snow Job' on Ike's Health Is Charged

WASHINGTON, July 16 (AP)—The Hospital, and other presidential Democratic National Committee doctors "is clearly in order." The charged today White House associates have done a "snow job" to a few hours after Eisenhower's illness.

The Democratic Digest, official publication of the party, said in a public questioning of Maj. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton, commander of Walter Reed Army Hospital, that Eisenhower's illness was "a snow job" to the public.

It said this "snow job" was "even more politically motivated and more irresponsible" than pressure it contended was put on the President to run again after his Sept. 24 heart attack. (The slang term "snow job" usually implies an attempt to obscure the facts.)

The Digest article was headlined "Palace Guard Again Puts Politics Ahead of the President's Welfare."

"In interviews and statements, using all of the extensive means of communication at the disposal of the party of big business," it said, "the Republican spokesmen pumped up a vast stream of assurances that the President would term, that his life expectancy had been improved, that he was in a better condition than before as the result of his illness and that he was already on top of his job again."

SPOTS HEALTH ISSUE

The magazine's broadside was generally interpreted as reflecting a decision by party organization leaders to make Eisenhower's health a direct issue in the fall campaign.

Most of the candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination have shied away from direct discussion of the President's health. They have said the issue is whether he is well enough to give full time to the presidency. White House press secretary James C. Hagerty has said Eisenhower's doctors will not be called together to answer further questions by reporters about the President's condition.

Soviet Renames Ex-Bonn Envoy As Cabinet Aide

MOSCOW, July 16 (AP)—The Soviet government said tonight V. A. Zorin has been reappointed as a deputy foreign minister, the post he held before he was named ambassador to West Germany. Zorin returned from Bonn last weekend.

The government so far has not announced that Zorin has given up his post in Bonn. The new appointment was disclosed in a brief Tass agency statement. "Before he left Bonn, Zorin paid a formal farewell to the West German Foreign Office and announced he was being transferred to another post."

GEORGIA WATERMELONS ARE CHICAGO-BOUND

Georgia Ships Chicago 100,000 Watermelons

"These big, sweet, juicy watermelons are from Georgia, huh?" That's what a Chicago appliance dealer will tell his customers as he gives away 100,000 top-quality Georgia watermelons in the Windy City.

Shipment of the 100,000 melons—largest single watermelon sale in the history of the Georgia State Farmers Market here—already has begun and will continue by truck for about 15 days.

Sol Polk, 38-year-old Chicago merchandising wizard, bought the watermelons for distribution at his appliance store. He also plans to display the bright red meat of Georgia watermelons on color television.

"It will be a great promotion name for the patient," Seaman for Georgia," Secretary of Agriculture Phil Campbell said.

First melons shipped to Chicago were grown near McRae and Hazlehurst. The melons ranged in weight from 40 to 75 pounds—and their price ranged from about 40 to 60 cents. Total cost of the melons plus shipment was estimated at $75,000.

Sam Steele, manager of the Farmers Market, said the big sale "might raise the price of watermelons" in Georgia.

The investigators found that Mrs. Luce for 20 months had been breathing arsenic fumes and eating food and drinking coffee that was sprinkled with the deadly white dust. The diagnosis was serious anemia and nervous fatigue. After two months, she felt better and returned to her post.

Soon the symptoms returned, and became even more disturbing. Her hair began to come out and her fingernails became brittle. Her teeth began loosening. She was forced to take to her bed more and more.

Late in 1954 she went to a U. S. Navy hospital in Naples. A Navy doctor examined her and asked if any of her medicines contained arsenic.

"It was the first time the ugly word had been mentioned in connection with her illness," the Time account said.

Later she reported the poison theory to a friend in the Central Intelligence Agency.

Meantime Navy doctors on their own sent laboratory specimens to the U. S. Naval Hospital at Bethesda, Md., using a fictitious name for the patient: Seaman Jones.

The report came back: Seaman Jones was a victim of arsenic poisoning.

Mrs. Luce quickly saw she was in a ticklish situation. If the news was made public, delicate diplomatic relations might be jeopardized.

Investigators checked American and Italian employees at the Farmers Market, said the big sale "might raise the price of watermelons" in Georgia.

Within a week the arsenic had

Lookouts, Pelicans Pack Star Openers

Cassini Bats Own Dickens
In Cleanup, Lags on Hurlers

MEMPHIS, July 16 (AP)—The Southern Assn. All-Star starting lineup was brewed today with a Chattanooga flavor on the bases and a New Orleans tang to the outfield.

Three Chattanooga Lookouts anchor the infield: Bob Oldis behind the plate, Stan Roseboro at third and Lyle Luttrell at shortstop.

Nashville's Larry Taylor will hold down second, with Buck Riddle of Atlanta at first. The starting pitcher won't be named until tomorrow.

In the outfield, Memphis' Gip Dickens will patrol center, flanked by two New Orleans operatives—John Powers in right and Emil Panko in left.

The All-Star squad tangles with league-leading Birmingham on the Barons' home field Wednesday night. The dream team will be masterminded by Jack Cassini. He's automatically manager because his Chicks won last year's pennant.

Cassini picked one of his own, Dickens, for the cleanup spot in the batting order, which goes like this: Taylor, Roseboro, Powers,

Delayed Opening On Loop Agenda

BIRMINGHAM, July 16 (AP)—Opening and closing dates of the 1957 season are expected to provoke major discussion when Southern Assn. directors meet Wednesday.

Such dates usually are set at the meeting, held in conjunction with the league All-Star game. Atlanta President Earl Mann has proposed that the season start later to avoid bad weather that has cursed the April end of the schedule.

Coming up for discussion will be the appointment of a scheduler, television, financial assistance to the widow of Umpire Gray Holcombe, who died last week of injuries received while traveling between assignments, and renewal of the Dixie Series contract with the Texas League.

First 12 Lookouts in order, before surrendering two runs in the fifth. Lyle Luttrell's double on the heels of a walk to Jess Levan and a subsequent ground-out rang up the first one. Guy Morton hoisted a sacrifice fly to plate Luttrell.

Back-to-back homers by Danfels and Meeks in the seventh upped the Cracker margin to 5-2, but neither Mosser nor the lead lasted through the eighth.

Morton's homer started the four-run comeback. After Bob Oldis beat out an infield hit, pinch-hitter Stan Roseboro and Dan Porter singled to load the bases. Bruce Barnes' out banked one run, Mosser uncorked a wild pitch for another and Crawford Davidson doubled for a 6-5 edge.

Vogel curbed the rally and Boring knotted the score with his lead homer in the eighth, the first safety off Van Cuyk.

Vogel and Van Cuyk then dueled down the overtime stretch, until the "Ace" officially announced his return to duty.

Vic Rehm (8-6) will shoot for a Cracker sweep of the four-game set Tuesday night. He'll be opposed by Lookout ace, lefty Bob Ross (8-2).

MY FINEST FISHING DAY MYSTERY OF INLAND TARPON STILL BAFFLES BOBBY DODD

(Another in a series of articles on the greatest fishing thrills of people familiar to all Georgians.)

By BILL ALLEN

Georgia Tech coach Bobby Dodd's greatest single achievement so far as fishing is concerned was his 13-pound, one-ounce bass taken this year at Callaway's down at Chipleys.

Since Dodd is first and always a bass fisherman, that will always be his finest fishing day. It already has been covered in these pages—and elsewhere. Rivaling it, however, in the Tech coach's memory is a day down in Florida when he fished in "the strangest lake in the world."

Dodd and his line coach, Ray Graves, were knocking around in south Florida near Everglades City, hunting out-of-the-way bass haunts when they ran into an old Negro guide who promised them the very best in fishing.

He led them to a small hole in the ground called "Deep Lake."

It is herein described as a hole in the ground because Dodd and Graves looked at one another askance upon seeing this gill-described spot. It was all of three or four acres in area.

They got out there in a boat and began fishing in this inland, fresh water lake, and Dodd re-

BOBBY DODD

A Tunnel or a Hurricane

calls that they caught some bass. "We caught bass, alligators and," here Dodd pauses when telling the tale, "we hung a few tarpon. . . ."

"Wait a minute," the object of the story always interrupts.

"Thought you said this was an inland, fresh water lake. . . ."

"Tarpon, up to 100 pounds at least," Dodd plows through the stammered interruption to his climax. Then he sits back and smiles like an undernourished Buddha.

"Up to 100 pounds," he re-

peats. "We didn't land any of them, of course."

Dodd has become accustomed to hearing people asking if he's sure they weren't gar, or if he might not be mistaken about the size of the lake.

"They were tarpon all right. Our tackle loss that day will speak for that. Big ones—the size they get at Tampa and Islamorada. And all we wanted was bass. It was a spring-fed lake, and had no visible connection with salt water, so Ray and I assumed there must be an underground passage between there and salt water," Dodd surmised.

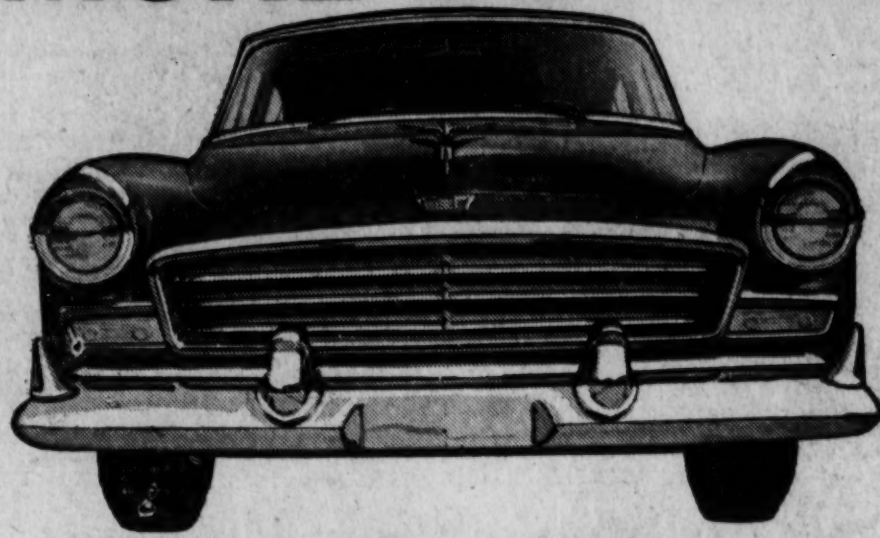

But he found out later that the natives claim the tarpon got into Deep Lake during a hurricane many years ago.

Dodd said that nobody has ever gotten a sinker to touch the bottom of the lake, according to his guide. It is supposed to be Florida's deepest pond, and no one has come along yet to look down there and tell for true whether it has an underground passageway to the ocean or not.

But the tarpon and the big bass are still in there, according to the boss of the Yellow Jacks who recently passed by Deep Lake.

It's posted, too, and closed to the public—one of nature's imponderables that gave Dodd his most unusual day of fishing.

State Golf Qualifying Begins at East Lake

Goodloe To Defend Championship;
Dahlbender Fires 69 in Practice

By BERT PRATHER

The cream of Georgia's amateur golfers were gathering at East Lake Country Club Monday. By late Tuesday afternoon practically all the challengers for Dynamite Billy Goodloe's state crown were expected to be on hand.

Qualifying for the championship division is scheduled for Wednesday over the Lake's famous old No. 1 course, but officials, anticipating an unusually large field, have asked all local players not shooting for championship flight to sign up and qualify Tuesday.

This will avoid congestion on Wednesday when the bulk of out-of-town and championship candidates make their pitch for qualifying places.

Big Gene Dahlbender Jr., who has won the Southern Amateur and practically everything else around these parts except the State; Augusta's Cobby Ware, who won his second State Junior championship last Saturday at Athens Country Club, and Mickey Gallagher Jr., of Augusta, were among title candidates playing practice rounds Monday. Dahlbender recorded a 35-34-69, two under par for the course. He eagled the par five ninth hole.

Southern Amateur champion Arnold Blum, of Macon; former Southern kings George Hamer, Columbus, Charles Harrison and Tommy Barnes are expected to be among the starters along with former state titlists Jack Key Jr., Columbus; Bill Zimmerman, Columbus; Dick Hackett, Rome, and Frank Mulherin Jr., Augusta. Barnes, Blum and Hamer are also former State winners.

Heading the younger stars will be Ware, Cecil Calhoun, Columbus; Bobby Dunn, Camilla; Jack Lumpkin, Athens; Jake Howard Jr., Jimmy Raines, Joe Steinberg, Larry McCrary, Bob Moser and Sam Mays, all of Augusta; Jimmy Allen and Eddie Sams, Athens; Bobby Pierce, Atlanta junior champion, Tommy Aaron, state Open champ from Gainesville and Joel Finkelstein, Savannah.

First round match play starts Thursday morning. The champion will be crowned after Sunday's 36 holes.

Bryant Leads Rome Juniors By Dalton 2

Special to The Constitution
SHANNON, July 16—Ken Bryant, three-sport terror for Rome High School, powered two lousy triples Monday to lead Rome Post 1 to a 6-2 decision over Dalton No. 2 in the second round of the District Seven American Legion Junior Baseball Tournament.

The decision dumped Dalton No. 2 into the loser's bracket of this double-elimination meet. Rome joined Smyrna and Pepperell in the unbeaten circle.

Dalton No. 1 kept its title chances alive by eliminating Brighton, 3-1, behind the 19-strike-out performance of lefty Sherrill Whitfield.

Tuesday's schedule sends the two once-beaten Dalton Posts against each other at 5:30 p.m. and unbeaten Pepperell and Smyrna lock horns at 8 o'clock.

Bethea Races To Easy Nod

NEW YORK, July 16 (AP)—Young Wayne Bethea of New York chased veteran Jimmy Slade all over the St. Nicholas Arena ring tonight to gain a unanimous 10-round decision.

At the end, Bethea appeared more tired than Slade. Try as he might, Bethea never did land a really good solid punch. But the fact that he carried the fight won it for him.

ATLANTA'S FIRST CHOICE FOR SAVINGS

'Snow Job' on Ike's Health Is Charged

WASHINGTON, July 16 (AP)—The Democratic National Committee charged today White House associates have done a "snow job" to gloss over President Eisenhower's illness.

The Democratic Digest, official publication of the party, said another public questioning of Maj. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton, commandant of Walter Reed Army Hospital, and other presidential doctors "is clearly in order." The Digest said a "calculated" campaign had been carried on by the "men around the President" to make it appear that Eisenhower wasn't a sick man at the time of his operation.

It said this "snow job" was "even more politically motivated and more irresponsible" than pressure it contended was put on the President to run again after his Sept. 24 heart attack. (The slang term "snow job" usually implies an attempt to obscure the facts.)

The Digest article was headlined "Palace Guard Again Puts Politics Ahead of the President's Welfare."

"In interviews and statements, using all of the extensive means of communication at the disposal of the party of big business," it said, "the Republican spokesmen pumped up a vast stream of assurances that the President would be improved, that he was in a better condition than before as the result of his illness and that he was already on top of his job again."

SPOTS HEALTH ISSUE

The magazine's broadside was generally interpreted as reflecting a decision by party organization leaders to make Eisenhower's health a direct issue in the fall campaign.

Most of the candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination have shied away from direct discussion of the President's health. They have said the issue is whether he is well enough to give full time to the presidency.

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty has said Eisenhower's doctors will not be called together to answer further questions by reporters about the President's condition.

Soviet Renames Ex-Bonn Envoy As Cabinet Aide

MOSCOW, July 16 (AP)—The Soviet government said tonight V. A. Zorin has been reappointed as a deputy foreign minister, the post he held before he was named ambassador to West Germany. Zorin returned from Bonn last weekend.

The government so far has not announced that Zorin has given up his post in Bonn. The new appointment was disclosed in a brief Tass agency statement.

(Before he left Bonn, Zorin paid a formal farewell to the West German Foreign Office and announced he was being transferred to another post.)

Reds Holding Lost Airmen, U.S. Charges

MOSCOW, July 16 (AP)—The United States tonight accused the Soviet Union of holding a number of American airmen. Some have been missing more than six years.

A U. S. note to the Soviet Foreign Ministry demanded information about them and others.

It said the U. S. government is informed and is compelled to believe the Soviet Union is detaining military personnel from two U. S. planes.

They were a U. S. Navy Privateer lost over the Baltic April 8, 1950, and a U. S. Air Force B29 that went down on the Sea of Japan or near Kachchatka June 13, 1952.

The note added that it may well be that the Soviet government has in custody crewmen from other aircraft, specifically men who fought for the U. N. command in Korea. The United States asked the Soviet government to make a thorough investigation and keep the embassy here informed of its progress.

Quickly the room was repainted with non-leaded paint and the danger was eliminated.

TV Repairman Held Anew In School Robberies Here

A 34-year-old television repairman Monday was held at city jail in connection with schoolhouse burglaries over Fulton and DeKalb counties in which typewriters and adding machines were the principal loot, police said.

Lt. W. M. Cox said charges against James W. Dickey of 632 Parkway Dr., N.E., in connection with a March 14 burglary at Roosevelt High in which 25 typewriters and other equipment were taken, would be presented before the Fulton County Grand Jury Tuesday.

Dickey already is under indictment in DeKalb County on burglary charges growing out of a raid March 12 at the H. O. Burgess School, Cox said. He said a typewriter, mimeograph machine and radio-phonograph were taken. The typewriter and mimeograph machine have been recovered.

Dickey also is under indictment in Fulton County on burglary charges in connection with raids June 13, 1955, at the Minton-Jones Typewriter Co., 127 Whiteway St., East Point, and a burglary March 8 at Smith High, Cox said.

Rearrested Sunday, Dickey now faces charges in the Roosevelt High burglary in which the loot was estimated at $3,000, Cox related.

Cox said two persons, Henry Grady (Jelly) Jones, and Major Feaster, Negro, already had been convicted in the East Point burglary and are serving three-to-five-year sentences each.

Police have recovered 10 typewriters taken in raids on schools in Atlanta, unincorporated Fulton County, DeKalb County and surrounding counties.

After the investigation began several weeks ago, two machines were recovered by a roadside near Canton, one was found on Simpson road near Lincoln Cemetery and another in Wolf Creek.

Four schools were raided in a single weekend, police records showed. They were Smith, Pryor Street, Roosevelt and Burgess schools.

Police are keeping a sharp watch on gambling activities, especially lottery operations, in an attempt to recover the adding machines, Cox said.

'Marietta' Scores Under-the-Stars

By PAUL JONES

Victor Herbert's durable "Naughty Marietta" was presented Monday night at Chastain Memorial Park as the second production of the season by the Municipal Theater Under-the-Stars.

This timeless favorite, the only show of a pre-war vintage to be presented this year, contains some good music, an abundance of comedy and one ballet sequence.

The score highlighting such melodies as "Neath the Southern Moon," "I'm Falling In Love With Some One," "Italian Street Song" and "The Dream Melody" was interpreted by an excellent cast, headed by Yola Casselle and Marvin Worden.

Both of the stars were in excellent voice, and their dramatic pretending was of first quality. They took the second act spotlight after the comedy principals, Jack Goode and Gloria Wallace, had monopolized the first portion of the play with a number of farce-comedy scenes, which contained many modern lines, not apropos of the period in which the play was set.

This modern touch may have been necessary to brighten the script, but we think that the clowning was overdone and could have been improved with a little more restraint.

An outstanding personality in the singing cast was Rosalind Nadell, who sang the second lead role of "Adah."

Miss Nadell's "Neath the Southern Moon" was the finest solo of the evening.

Glenn Ryman and Jim Albright, the principal dancers, led the ballet ensemble in a second act divertissement which was enthusiastically applauded by the first-night audience.

Standouts in the dramatic cast were Diana Belk, Melton Moore, Janet Clark, Joyce Albrecht, Roy Johnson, Blaine Cordner, and Bill Linton.

Music and orchestra were under the direction of Sherman Frank, who did an outstanding job last year and who is back for his second Atlanta season.

50 Warrenton Plant Jobs Cut Off by Steel Strike

The Knox-Warrenton Co. in Warrenton has cut its production hours from three 8-hour shifts a day to one daily shift and will reduce its personnel by about 50 employees, company officials have announced.

The new policy became effective Monday.

The reduction in employees came in the production department of the Warrenton metal plant, an official said, and did not affect administrative personnel.

Terming the cut-back as being the direct result of the recent strikes which have crippled 90 per cent of the nation's output of steel, a Knox-Warrenton official said, "It was either a case of cutting our rate of steel consumption by reducing the number of shifts and employees or risk a complete shutdown in the future."

He said, however, that the Warrenton metal plant is among the best supplied steel-consuming plants in the South.

"We had a large supply of steel on hand when the strike occurred," he said, "and by cutting our consumption, we will be able to operate indefinitely."

The official said, however, that their supply on certain types of steel was somewhat short and this was what prompted a cutback at this time. He declined to predict just how long the Warrenton plant would operate on one shift a day.

He said that as soon as the flow of steel to plants was back to normal, the company would again return to its regular schedule.

$2 Million Gas Storage Plant Begun in Clayton

By OSCAR JOHNSON

JONESBORO, July 16—Work has begun on a $2 million Atlanta Gas Light Co. plant in Clayton County which will store 1,330,000 gallons of propane gas at 47 degrees below zero.

The plans were announced at the annual Clayton Chamber of Commerce banquet Monday night.

Representatives of the Atlanta concern said the plant will "assure a plentiful supply of gas for this area for heating and other purposes" on a standby basis.

Other new county industry unveiled at the banquet were:

A planned $150,000 initial expenditure by the Posey-Linn Corp., builders of Dorsey Trailer bodies, on a new plant, slated to begin in six months; enlargement of an existing building at Riverdale by the Frank H. Davis Co., recon-ditioners of paper mill machinery; construction of a 300,000-bushel grain elevator by Southeastern Feed, Inc., and building of a plant

KEEP WELL: Skin Rash of Newborn Is Normal

By DR. THEODORE VAN DELLEN

Every mother wants a perfect baby and she eagerly looks over him as soon as she can get her hands on him.

After determining that he has the right number of fingers and toes the skin is inspected and within a few moments mother knows where every blemish is located.

If she knows beforehand that certain skin variations are normal she won't become alarmed at what she sees.

At birth, the body is covered with a layer of greasy material, the vernix caseosa. This protective coating varies in amount and is most abundant on the neck and in the armpits and groin. Even without a bath it disappears within 12 hours.

There is some evidence that this outer film has antibacterial qualities and some hospital nurseries have lowered their incidence of skin irritations and infections by delaying the infant's first bath.

Soon the soft, smooth, and mildly pink skin takes on a boiled lobster appearance that fades gradually in about two days. During this time the hands and feet may be slightly bluish.

On the second or third day a peculiar spotty red eruption may crop out over the body. The rash looks like insect bites and some physicians have dubbed the condition "flea bite rash." The cause has never been uncovered but the eruption disappears within a few days.

The skin of half the new babies becomes somewhat yellow or jaundiced. This is due in part to the inability of the immature liver to remove bile pigments from the blood. The yellowish cast disappears spontaneously in a week to 10 days and should not be confused with the jaundice that develops immediately after birth due to a disturbance in the R_h factor.

Newborns tend to collect an extra amount of water in the outer layers of the body tissues. This gives the new arrival a healthy and firm appearance with a tense, shiny texture to the skin. The accumulation does not last, however, which explains some of the weight loss that takes place during the first five days of life.

Many infants also develop small, firm, yellow-white lesions on the face, particularly about the nose during the second week. They represent plugged oil glands and vanish as soon as these structures begin to function.

The bidding:

East 1 spade Pass
 South 2 hearts Pass
 West 3 hearts Pass
 North 3 hearts Pass

Opening lead: King of spades. A very neat swindle was perpetrated by my friends, Alfred Sheinwald and S. Garton Churchill, who conspired to snatch an ironclad contract out of the arms of South in a recent tournament.

The bidding was short and to the point. Noteworthy is North's raise to three hearts. This is by no means a daring venture for assuming that South is not a prodigal, North's heart holding is ample support for a vulnerable overcall made at the level of two. A bid of two no trump by North would not be sound procedure and showing the diamonds would be completely pointless.

Churchill, sitting West, opened the king of spades and Sheinwald shrewdly overtook with the ace. If West had another spade, South would be void and not much would be lost by this seeming extravagance. Sheinwald returned the four of spades. In ruffing situations, the size of the card returned has a special significance. The return of the lowest suggests that East's re-entry is in clubs.

South ruffed with the queen of hearts, but West declined to accept the trick, knowing that he could not lose his king of hearts in any circumstance. He realized that if he overruffed and put partner in, the spade continuation would probably be ruffed by declarer with the ten, and his remaining two trumps could then be picked up.

West's failure to overruff lulled South into a false sense of security. He assumed that West lacked the king. Of course, declarer could have won the hand by leading the jack of hearts and permitting it to ride. But if it proved that East had the king and another heart such play would permit West to score on an overruff with the eight or nine of trumps. Declarer therefore decided to lead a low trump to the ace, and a trump back. Now if East showed up with the king, declarer could afford to ruff high.

However, West won with the king, put East in with a club, and on the spade return West could not be prevented from scoring with the nine of hearts.

Debate on Ike Rights Bill Fixed at 2 Days by House

working on a campaign issue that is bound to figure largely in the party platforms. If the Senate wants to dawdle or block, House members said, they want to make their own marks. They were making them today by fighting, from both sides, from going to gong.

Rep. Emanuel Celler (D-NY) heading the judiciary committee, fought for two hours this afternoon to get the bill through the House, at least. So did Rep. Kenneth B. Keating (R-NY). They are not always back-to-back against the foe. They were today.

This civil rights matter has been political dynamite through the years. In this legislation it means that no forces shall be allowed to exercise pressures—through molestation or coercion—against any persons, regardless of race, color, religion or nationality background to deprive them of full political or economic rights.

TOO FAST TO COMPREHEND?

William M. Colmer (D-Miss) holding that the civil rights program is moving too fast for the capacity of the Negro to absorb it. A few generations ago, he contended, they were "unenlightened human beings in the jungles of Africa." Yet, he said, judicial decree and legislative document are trying to place them on the same level with people who had benefited from education and Christianity for thousands of years.

"This," he added just doesn't make sense."

Rep. Charles A. Halleck (Ind),

serving as deputy minority leader, led the fight to hold general debate to two days, and won. The Southerners, it was apparent, had many tricks up their sleeves. This prompted the proponents of the bill to put "watchers" at the chamber doors, and to see that delaying tactics, through 35 minutes of quorum calls were not made necessary.

FAITHFUL ATTENDANCE

This continued attendance on the floor is very rare. It was more faithful than it is usually in the case of appropriations bills running to billions of dollars. At no time did those seeking to retard proceedings catch an insufficient number on the floor.

At points in debate proponents seemed to agree that the opponents had made points. One was that the attorney general might be empowered to bring suits to enforce the Supreme Court's decision against racial segregation in public schools.

"Let's be frank about it," Celler suggested. Keating did not agree, but conceded that the language of the pending measure leaves some doubt.

As debate progressed it was apparent that the Southern Democrats, as they promised, will employ "every legal and parliamentary tactic to defeat the bill. Unless the measure is loaded down with amendments that might turn supporters against it, it is expected generally that it will be passed and sent to the Senate for pigeonholing.

trolled exhibition," he declared. The midway for the two final performances here was on a drab parking lot on the outskirts of town.

Pickets from the American Guild of Variety Artists and the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, who have been marching outside the grounds at every circus stop since its opening in New York last April, were on duty till the finale.

The picketing caused the departure from the show of a half-dozen headliners, including Emmett Kelly, the best-known of its clowns. The two unions also organized a rival circus that had a brief run in Boston.

In recent weeks, a Teamster organizer said today, union members employed as truck and tractor operators had been harassing the circus with "slowdown" tactics.

However, a bigger element in the late start today appeared to be a new expression of bad luck that has dogged the show for weeks. Scheduled to arrive between 4 and 5 a.m., the circus train suffered a derailment near Alliance, Ohio, that made it four hours late.

FIGHT WITH MUD

In Alliance the circus had played "up to its hub caps in mud." Earlier last week muddy grounds at Meadville, Pa., had balked attempts to get the heavy portable bleachers into the Big Top. As a result, the circus played to an all-standing audience for the first time in its 86-year history.

Muddy grounds and accidents caused delays and extra expense at other road stops in the last two weeks. A windstorm ripped the giant tent in Geneva, N.Y., July 1 and the performances had to be given in the open for five days.

The show had been scheduled to play tomorrow in Moundsville, W.Va., and to go from there to cities in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin for a series of one-night stands.

NO WARNING

The suspension notice came without advance warning. All told, the North announcement sounded "taps" for nearly 1,000 workers in all categories from accountants to elephant boys.

The train to Florida will carry 800 elephants, lions, tigers, horses and other animals.

continental missile defense field with the Nike.

In approving funds for developing the Talos missile, the House Appropriations Committee had complained about "squabbling between the services," warned that it would delay the defense build-up and said the taxpayer would be "the principal loser."

The bill passed by Congress authorized the Pentagon to go ahead on the Talos program but only after the secretary of defense had "come into agreement with" the armed services committees of Congress about the missile's use.

If the committees disagreed with the secretary's plans, the President objected, they could nullify the congressional authorization. Thus, an executive official would be forced to share his administrative authority with two committees of Congress, the President said.

This, he added, would "restore the clear lines of responsibility which the constitution provides."

The second section rejected by the President concerned military housing projects. The bill provided that the Pentagon could not spend the money authorized for these until the Department of Defense had "come into agreement" with the congressional committees.

"While the Congress may enact legislation governing the making of government contracts," the President wrote, "it may not constitutionally delegate to its committees the power . . . to approve or disapprove a contract which an executive officer proposes to make."

He urged that the bill be re-enacted "without the objectionable provisions."

McKeon Defense Demands Access to Survey Facts

McKeon and others the night he led his 74-man "boot" platoon into the dark waters. Only 68 came back alive.

The lean defense lawyer said he had asked Navy Secretary Thomas to produce the survey, but that the secretary had refused unless he was ordered to do so by the law officer for the court martial, Navy Capt. Irving N. Klein.

Klein said he would reserve judgment on the request but suggested to a startled courtroom that the most direct way of ascertaining the results of the poll would be to put Gen. Randolph McC. Pate, the Marine commandant, on the witness stand. It was Pate who ordered the survey after the tragedy.

Klein also asked Berman if he intended to call Pate as a witness.

"I have no answer to that at this time," Berman said.

The defense served a request on the trial counsel, Maj. Charles B. Sevier of Jacksonville, Ill., for the names and home addresses of all men discharged from the Marine Corps from the Parris Island base since last Jan. 1.

Sevier, who is the prosecutor, objected to the request for the opinion poll results on the grounds that the defense had not shown their materiality to the case.

"He (Berman) doesn't claim materiality," said Sevier. "He only 'suspects' materiality."

Berman, a former Air Force colonel, snapped, "I think they are material but how can I tell if the Marine Corps won't let me see them?"

Sevier said the demand was "a 27,000-copy fishing expedition."

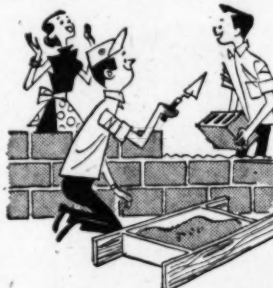

The argument became so involved that Klein excused the court-martial panel until 9 a.m. EDT tomorrow.

Girls' Heart-Throbs
More Primitive Now?

By MARJORY SMITH

GAY ATLANTA'S definition of a pedestrian: "A man with a wife, a daughter, two sons and one automobile."

INDIGNANT WOMAN standing on crowded Oglethorpe trolley remarks with venomous sweetness to another female standee: "I'd give you my seat, dearie—if I had one." (Nearby male passenger, for whose special benefit the remark is made, remains doggedly in his seat but grows a little pink around the ears.)

PUZZLED MOTHER writes in to query plaintively why teen-aged daughters of today "get crushes on such weird, unwashed-looking characters."

"My youngsters were just wild about Marlon Brando sometime ago when he was in his sloppiest stage," she reports. "After he appeared in a movie or two looking like a gentleman, they dropped him cold."

"I've been comparing notes with the other parents in our neighborhood. I read in the papers about Elvis Presley and the other current 'thrills.' I can't understand it. My grandmother sighed over old-time smoothies like Valentino and Douglas Fairbanks Sr. My mother liked Ronald Coleman. I sort of had a ken for Walter Pidgeon. I'll admit another of my crushes, Clark Gable, is on the rugged side. But nobody can deny he has charm."

"The way I see it, each female generation is finding its heroes more and more on the primitive level. I pity my great-granddaughters. Poor little types, they'll be satisfied with nothing less than a Neanderthal man!"

"A STUDENT in a really good commercial course in high school," reports State Department of Education publicist Bernice McCullar, "learns to operate a ton of machines, masters 500 keys and writes 12 miles of shorthand."

Lockheed's Hercules Tabbed
Fastest Air Force Transport

The fastest U.S. Air Force transport in production today is Lockheed's new prop-jet propelled C130 Hercules, performance figures Monday indicate.

Manufactured at Lockheed Aircraft Corp.'s Marietta plant, the bulky Hercules can hit speeds in excess of 375 miles per hour while carrying a capacity of 20 tons of cargo.

Lockheed officials report the C130 can fly more than 100 miles per hour faster than presently operating tactical transport planes.

Performance figures show the spectacular transport can take off and climb to an altitude of 2,500 feet in 60 seconds. Its altitude range is up to 40,000 feet, comparable to that of six-jet B47 strategic bombers.

Slated to join the Tactical Air Command late this year, the Hercules can cross the continent or an ocean nonstop at 330 miles per hour, while carrying a 25,800-pound cargo and more than 5,000 gallons of fuel.

Loaded with 25,000 pounds of cargo for air-dropping by its "push-button" aerial system, a C130 based in the U.S. can resupply military forces in Alaska without the necessity of landing.

After a hot day in the city, it's a delightful relief to enter the cool cabin of a big Delta Golden Crown DC-7.

You relax in a deep-cushioned seat, let it recline to the last notch and stretch out full length. The cares and tensions of the day slip away. As you breathe in deeply, you catch the exquisite scent of mountain-fresh air... presently let yourself doze off to the lullaby of four purring engines.

Golden awakening

Awaking refreshed, your eye catches the flash of golden linen in the aisle ahead. Your Delta stewardess is setting each individual table for dinner. Soon your own rich yellow table coverlet is in place and the stewardess is pointing out how the corner buttonhole of your golden napkin hooks neatly to one of your shirt's top buttons.

Steak to order

Before you left, the reservations girl on the telephone asked how you would like your steak. You answered lightly, "Just pass it quickly across the grill." Now here it comes—and it is rare, "as you like it." But first a shrimp cocktail with tangy sauce. Then a cheddar-topped baked potato and green beans as companions for your steak. A green salad and delicate cream pie, topped off with fragrant coffee, winds up the most delicious meal you can remember aloft.

It's just like dinner at the Plaza, golden linen and all. Only there is no check and no tip! Make your reservations now for dinner with Delta, 4 miles up!

Foes Ousted George, Says Thompson

By ALBERT RILEY

M. E. Thompson said he is running against "the powerful clique that betrayed Sen. George" as he opened Atlanta headquarters Monday in his campaign against Herman Talmadge for the U.S. Senate.

That "clique" of Talmadge backers "is attempting to exercise a monopoly over Georgia politics," Thompson declared as he opened his office in the Henry Grady Hotel.

He named Hughes Spalding of Atlanta as head of that group and also as head of a "millionaire law firm" Thompson charged has a monopoly in the sale of local and state bonds and revenue certificates.

CHARGES MANIPULATION

The former acting governor claimed that it was Spalding "who master-minded the manipulation of Sen. George out of the race and Herman into it."

Admitting that he is running his campaign "on a shoestring," Thompson said he has received only about $1,500 in contributions that came in voluntarily.

Denying that he has received any campaign funds from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, Thompson said "I have never accepted one penny from any Negro organization and never will."

"That rumor was started by Herman Talmadge and Sid Williams and it was not a rumor, but just a lie—and they know it." (Williams publishes a string of newspapers.)

DEMAGOGUERY ALLEGED

Accusing Talmadge of demagoguery, Thompson said:

"The type of ranting he always carries on against Negroes just naturally drives them to vote for me."

In announcing an 18-plank campaign platform, Thompson said on the racial issue that "I am for harmony as between the races; I am against those who are stirring up strife."

Taking note of an isolationist tone in Talmadge's campaign speeches, Thompson had this to say in his platform on world affairs, national defense and foreign aid.

"I am for every honorable effort toward international understanding and world peace; I am against threats, rash words or deeds that may lead us to war."

FOR STOUT DEFENSE

"I am for a strong national defense extending to friendly nations; I am against depending on military might alone."

"I am for economic foreign aid based on the needs of our friends and our ability to share; I am against isolationism and total emphasis on military aid."

"I am for showing a tolerant understanding toward friendly peoples in the solution of their problems; I am against ridiculing and making fun of our friends."

"I am for a stern foreign policy based on justice and right; I am against a foreign policy that fluctuates with special interest, motivated by greed."

Thompson said he entered the race because he believed the people of Georgia ought to have an opportunity to vote for something else besides "Talmadgeism," which he said is "a stench in the nostrils of all decent people" outside Georgia.

SAYS HE CAN GET TIES

He added that he believes he could better represent Georgia and do more good for Georgians if elected to the Senate because he believes he can win the cooperation of other senators better than Talmadge can.

Thompson said he has no immediate plans for any intensive speaking campaign but will make a radio address at Cordele Thursday, speak to the Kiwanis Club there and then fly to Washington to attend a big Democratic senatorial dinner honoring Sen. George. He was invited to that affair, he said, as one of George's good friends, by Sen. Smathers (D-Fla.).

Thompson indicated he will not attempt to hold big rallies over the state but may confine his campaign largely to radio and television appearances.

PLATFORM

Thompson's platform said he is for the people, for promoting business and industry but against bad business and discriminatory freight rates. He said he is for the working man, better farm price support, development of natural resources, extension of social security, against a federal sales tax and against federal control of education, either direct or indirect.

Concluding with a swipe at Talmadge he said:

"Never before have the people of Georgia been misled as they are today. The political waters are troubled and murky. The only way to get the mud out of the water is to get the hog out of the spring."

Children Do Like School

By AGNES GAINES

Contrary to the popular belief that children do not like school, 250 eager youngsters gathered at Bass High School for the beginning of the three-week recreation school, sponsored by the Bass Community and Youth Council and operated by the Atlanta school system and city recreation department.

Classes in 11 subjects are being offered and children are allowed to enroll in up to three courses. Studies being offered include handicrafts, band, cooking, social dancing, dramatics, games, glee club, printing, sewing, typing and photography.

The aroma of cinnamon rolls and freshly-baked biscuits greet you as you enter the spotless kitchens where the cooking classes are conducted. Here, under skilled instructors, young folks from 9 years old up experience the thrill of their first culinary achievements. And even the three boys in the class are as ready to don the huge, over-sized aprons as the girls.

WOODCRAFT

On down the hall is the class in woodcraft. The boys reign supreme here as they bend over the electric saws, intent on their work. The class project is a wood stake for the front lawn, in the form of a dog, and bearing the number of the student's house. The instructor here is a woman, Miss Betty Yarbrough, who is director of the Bass Community Center.

Sewing machines hum busily and pattern pieces and pins litter the long tables in the sewing class. Scraps of brightly-hued cotton over-flow from the sewing baskets and boxes, revealing an assortment of gathered skirts, aprons, simple sheath dresses, and an evening dress in one box.

MUSIC

Strains of music that set your feet shuffling tells you that a class in square dancing is in progress in the gym. This is the most popular class in the school.

Ranking next in popularity is the typing class on the second floor. There are few vacancies to be seen among the 58 typewriters in the class. The students learn the keyboard and the fundamentals of typing. The majority of the youngsters enrolled for typing are students who will enter high school this fall and are taking it as an orientation to high school secretarial courses.

In the handicrafts class the children work with strips of bamboo and make ornaments of braided plastic. The bamboo, which has to be wet to make it pliable, is woven into baskets and mats in a variety of shapes and patterns. Potholders are made from colorful strips of cotton.

17TH YEAR

This year makes the 17th annual recreation school to be held at Bass High.

It was begun in 1940 as the first project of the council and has been held each year at the school. Classes are held from 9 a.m. to 12:40 p.m.

Bass High School Principal W. J. Scott is director. Instructors are taken from the Atlanta schools, with the majority of them from Bass High.

Tobe Says

Feathery Choice For Fall Hats

Certainly your first fall hat should be as pretty and feminine a one as you can find. My choice is one with feathers — either romantic ostrich or the more sophisticated iridescent black coq feathers.

For real glamour, try a big black velvet hat piled high with feathery ostrich reminiscent of the pre-World War I days.

Confidence Regained

Bob Hope was in town the other night to launch his new movie, "That Certain Feeling," with a spot of in-person spoofing and fun-making. Some of us had dinner with him and then went out to the Fox to see him perform on the stage—and I just want to say that I feel better now about the world of stage and screen and the taste of the great entertainment buying public.

Mr. Hope is a genuine, bonafide entertainer—and his public continues vast.

For a couple of weeks now, since I wrote critically—and perhaps a touch sourly—about a new young entertainer, my mail has been full of poison pen letters. The teen-age daughters of my friends regard me with haughty scorn. At home by at least one of my three children I have been treated with large doses of almost intolerable compassion. (You know: "My friends all hate you, Mother, but that's all right. I know you can't help being a square.")

So after a spell of feeling considerably at odds with the world, I was relieved and happy to find that Bob Hope is still as funny as I've always thought, and thousands of Atlantans seem to think so, too. The Fox was packed. I thought I saw even more standees than the opera draws. And everything Bob Hope said, every wry jibe at himself and his audience, every bumptious gag, brought tumultuous response.

When you think that this has been going on for years it's all the more warming.

Although he was funny on the stage about Elvis Presley, giving a wild, quick imitation of the singer and describing his voice as sounding like "a fox that's losing the race," off-stage Bob Hope was kind to the young man. His theory is that a new crop of teen-agers comes along every five years and every five years there's somebody to cause them to assemble in droves and squeal. Sinatra was the one 10 years ago. Johnny Ray came along five years ago, and now it's Presley.

"I think it's great," Hope said.

I remarked that I hesitated to make any predictions about the longevity of anybody's fame because of the classic prediction I made back in the '30's. Bing Crosby, I promised the readers of the Mobile Register, would never last.

"You were right," quipped Hope. "He hasn't."

Offstage with no written lines to guide him, Bob Hope is as funny as he is with an audience. I suggested that he feels that he is "on all the time," and he said, "Just about." But he's too natural and easy with people for that. His interests are wider than many stars and his acquaintance is vast. He knows baseball players, newspaper reporters and airplane pilots all over the world and he has a fund of amusing stories about nearly all of them.

His vitality is tremendous. Whether he's making a movie, performing before radio or television or just eating roast beef and kidding the waitress, he's full of bounce and energy. I asked him about it.

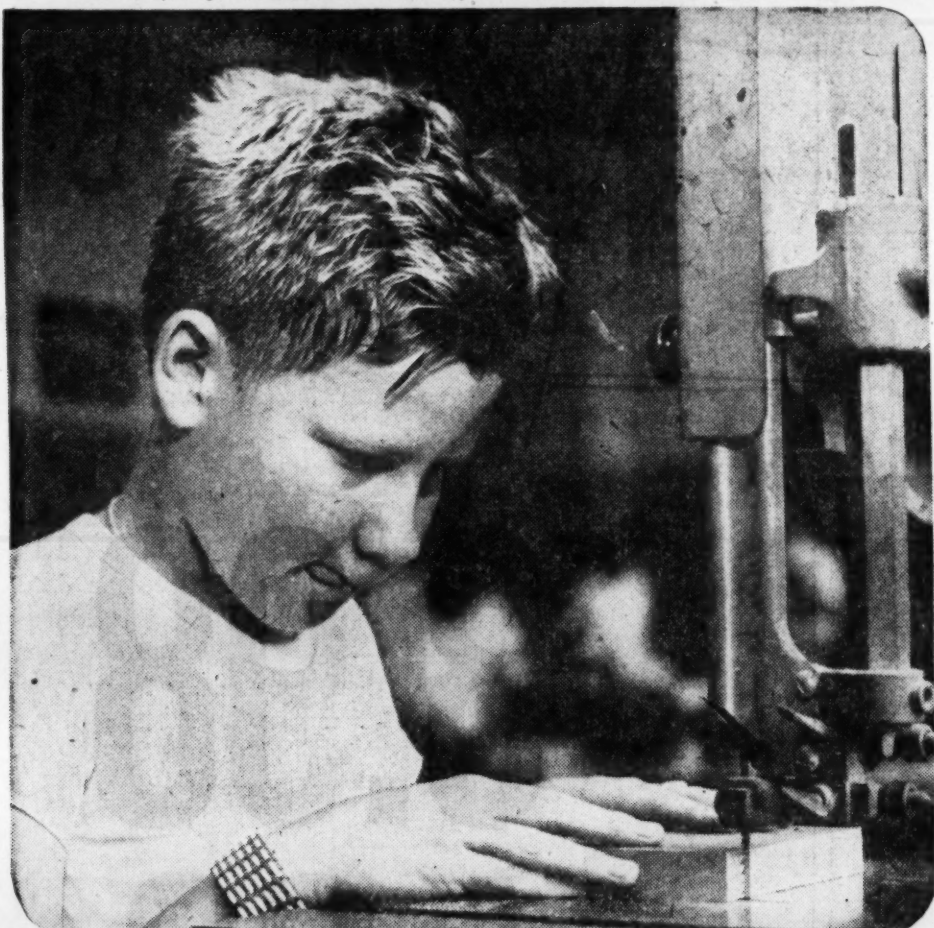

"I just do what I like to do," he said solemnly. "You don't get tired if you're busy at something you enjoy. I learned a long time ago how to cut out the activities that bore me. And then there's golf . . ."

Golf rests and relaxes him, he says, and he doggedly works a game into even the tightest schedule. Of course, I don't play golf but I find a nap is mighty relaxing. I wonder if today's schedule . . . ?

Johnstone, Burkhalter Vows Said

STONINGTON, Conn., July 16—With the bridegroom and his attendants wearing full Naval dress, Miss Bobette Johnstone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Johnstone of Geneva, Ill., and Stonington, Conn., became the bride of Lt. Edward Allen Burkhalter, USN, of Roanoke, Ala., on Saturday afternoon at the Congregational Church here.

The Rev. Carlton E. Worcester of Stonington and the Rev. George Kilpatrick of Toronto, Canada, officiated at the service, which was followed by a reception held at Salt Acres, the summer home here of the bride's grandparents. Mr. and Mrs. Rodney B. Stuart of Montclair, N.J., where the bride made her debut in 1953.

Lt. Burkhalter is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Allen Burkhalter of Roanoke, Ala.

The bride was attended by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Robert L. Johnstone III of Fort Sill, Okl., as matron of honor, and Miss Susanne Gardner of Washington, D.C., and Watch Hill, R.I., as maid of honor.

Her bridesmaids were Miss Alice Scudder of Lake Forest, Ill.; Miss Patricia Ingram of Nashville, Tenn.; Miss Mary Vollmer of St. Louis, Mo.; Miss Susan Harris of Framington, Mass.; Miss Marjorie Scott of Princeton, N.Y.; Miss Susan Stevens of Scarsdale, N.Y.; Mrs. Milton Henkel of Grose Point, Mich., and Miss Catherine Rose of Pasadena, Calif.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore the ivory satin and Brussels lace gown worn by her mother at her wedding. Her tulle veil was attached to a Brussels lace cap and she carried a sheaf of white orchids and valley lilies.

Robert C. Belike of Green Bay, Wis., was best man for his brother-in-law. Lt. Burkhalter chose for his groomsmen a group of fellow officers stationed with him at the Submarine Base, New London, Conn., including Lt. Howard Oder of Decatur, Ill.; Lt. William V. Surman of Peru, Ill.; Lt. David S. Cruden of Pequannock Bridge, Conn.; Lt. Herbert O. Burton of Prattville, Ala., and Lt. Frank Wadsworth of West Hartford, Conn.

Serving as ushers were John Niesse of North Tarrytown, N.Y.; John C. Cochrane of West Islip, N.Y.; Rodney S. Johnstone of Geneva, Ill.; Lt. Robert L. Johnstone III of Ft. Sill, Okla., and Lt. James Organ of the Submarine Base, Portsmouth, N.H.

After a honeymoon in Bermuda, the couple will reside at Bayberry Lodge, Wampascott Point, Stonington. Lt. Burkhalter is an engineering officer on one of the latest submarines and is stationed at the Submarine Base, New London.

Glazed Ham Sandwiches Are Summer Treat

Nice for eating out-of-hand with a cool glass of milk is an open-face sandwich that blends the spiciness of deviled ham with the tart-sweetness of cranberry sauce or currant jelly.

Spread slices of raisin bread with a layer of deviled ham. Top with a spoonful of jellied cranberry sauce that's been crushed with a fork, or currant jelly.

Slide under the broiler for a few minutes until top is nicely glazed.

Serve Eggs, Franks

Scramble thin slices of skinless frankfurters into lightly beaten eggs for a new variation on an old favorite.

Saute 1 tablespoon finely chopped onion till golden brown, add ½ thinly sliced frankfurter, and scramble with 2 eggs for each serving.

Decision To Reduce Is First Step in Slimming

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Making up your mind to reduce is the first step toward successful slimming. No doubt you have started a diet many times but couldn't stay with it. The second or third hungry day you went back to your regular ways of eating and to the food habits which, unfortunately, have proved to be too fattening.

Supposing you were to read in newspaper headlines that at long last, science had discovered the way to eat to control weight, without going hungry, or feeling weak or depressed? The news of this wonder diet by which you could lose two to three pounds a week would spread with the momentum of a new hope. You would start the diet at the very next meal. All right, do exactly that.

Science has discovered the way to control weight. The newer knowledge of nutrition has taken the hazards and the hunger out of dieting to reduce. A scientifically planned reducing diet provides every essential but calories generously. Calories can be limited, for there are plenty of calories stored in the excess fat.

While reducing, physiological processes go along as usual. If you shortchange yourself nutritionally, the upkeep and repair of body cells will be shoddy. Dieters, think of your body as being your personal house which you want to keep in a fine state of repair for the better part of a century. To do so, daily fare must furnish the nutrients the body needs to make good the wear and tear of daily living.

Perhaps an explanation about what happens when a reducing diet is deficient in protein should be included at this point. When daily menus furnish too little good quality protein, protein will be withdrawn from the body's own muscle, and soften tissues and vital organs. Actual weight loss may be greater, but such reducing is dangerous, for not only will body repair work be slipshod, but you can lose your bounce and vigor.

The backbone of protective meals, regardless of calories, is built around the basic seven: lean meat, fish or fowl; milk, skim milk or buttermilk or cheese; eggs, green leafy or yellow vegetables plus two others; a citrus fruit or juice, plus one or two other fruits; whole grain or enriched bread or cereal—amount depending on calorie restriction; and butter and margarine. Those protective foods furnish protein, minerals and vitamins which nourish the tissues while you lose excess fat.

STORY HOUR FOR NEW RESIDENTS OF ATLANTA
Mrs. Rhodes Haverty Jr. and Her Children, Kathy, Rhodes III and Lisa

Annie Lou Hardy Dr. and Mrs. Haverty Arrive for Residence

A former Atlantan returning last week to his native beach for the practice of medicine was Dr. Rhodes Haverty, who is residing with his family in the Haverhill Apartments at Lakemore.

Mrs. Haverty is the former Luliyane Seigler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Seigler of Augusta. She and Dr. Haverty have two small daughters, Kathy and Lisa, who are five and three, and a son, Rhodes III, who will be two in October.

Following his graduation from Georgia Medical College, Dr. Haverty interned at Jackson Memorial Hospital in Miami and took his residency at St. Christopher's Hospital for Children in Philadelphia. He is now chief resident in pediatrics at Grady Hospital.

Dr. Haverty's mother, Mrs. W. D. Dodehoff of Greenville, S.C., took her young granddaughters to the beach at Pawley's Island while their parents moved to Atlanta. They have now joined their family here.

A CALIFORNIAN flying in yesterday for his first visit to Atlanta was Miss Hildegarde Olsen of Los Angeles who is the guest for a week of her brother, George F. Olsen, and Mrs. Olsen at their Peachtree road home.

MISS DEENIE McKEEVER and Miss Gail Minnich are just back from ten days at Daytona Beach. They were accompanied by the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel McKeever, her grandmother, Mrs. Paul M. Coleman, and her young brother, Danny McKeever, and were guests at Surf and Sand on the beach.

MRS. ROBERT NOEL, her small son, Bobby, and her young nephew, Henry Noel, of Covington, Tenn., will return home tomorrow after a visit to Mrs. Noel's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Price of Brookwood Hills.

SO MANY ATLANTANS are cruising North Cape waters aboard the Caronia that scarcely a day passes when they do not get together for private parties, in addition to the festivities planned by the ship's captain.

Both Mrs. Cecil Strohbar and Mrs. Arthur Lucas have celebrated birthdays since leaving New York, and each was honored guest at a gala party, with her health drunk in champagne.

"Celebrities aboard," writes Mrs. Strohbar, "are Lady Oakes of Nassau, John J. Astor, Mrs. William Woodward and her two young sons of New York."

THE DAUGHTER BORN to Mr. and Mrs. J. William Speegle at Patuxent Naval Air Station, Md., has been named Margaret Wight. Mrs. Speegle is the former Margaret Roberts Woodside of Atlanta.

IT IS NOT ALL WORK for the production staff and casts of the six musical shows being presented at the Municipal Theater Under-the-Stars, for each Saturday evening after the performance, a party will be given in honor of the group.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Harris started the ball rolling last Saturday with a midnight supper and swimming party at their Paces Ferry road home.

Others who will be hosts for the group are Dr. and Mrs. Charles Rieser, Dr. and Mrs. Marvin Mitchell, Dr. and Mrs. Mason Baird, Dr. and Mrs. Stanton Borden, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Block, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Abner, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Waxelbaum, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Pierson, Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Battey, Dr. and Mrs. S. T. Barnett, Dr. and Mrs. I. B. Levenson, the Henry Geigermans, the Henry Chanins, and Maurice B. Seltzer.

BRIDE-ELECT PEGGY GLOVER will be honor guest at a tea to be given at Franklin Simon's on Saturday by Mrs. R. C. Astin and Mrs. J. R. Crews, and on July 25, Misses Barbara Spangler and Joan Bruer will entertain at a shower. Mrs. Simpson D. Kidd Jr. and Mrs. Marion Crawford have planned a linen shower for July 28.

Miss Glover's mother, Mrs. C. P. Glover Jr., will entertain at a tulle tea on July 29, and the rehearsal party will be given by her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Glover Sr., on Aug. 3.

Miss Glover's marriage to Norman Vaughn is set for Aug. 4. Mrs. Paul A. Glover and Miss Peggy Smith have already entertained in her honor.

says Mrs. C. L. Kellogg who now uses ZONITE to douche!

SAFE! Women usually wonder about douching for feminine hygiene. Mrs. Kellogg did, until she learned how important the proper method of douching with a fountain syringe is, using an effective yet safe solution—like ZONITE.

EFFECTIVE! No other type liquid antiseptic-germicide for the douche of all those tested is so powerfully effective yet so safe to body tissues as ZONITE.

HEALTHFUL! ZONITE completely deodorizes, promptly washes away germs and odor-causing waste substances. A nurse once advised Mrs. Kellogg that if any abnormal condition exists, she should see her doctor, who would probably recommend that she continue to use ZONITE.

DAINTY! You, too, can have the "peace of mind" and daintiness that ZONITE gives you after monthly periods and other times. Use ZONITE as directed, as often as needed, without risk of injury. Costs pennies per douche.

Perfume That Clings

Q.—Dear Penny: I adore perfume, but for some reason or other its fragrance just does not last on me. I have told several of my friends that I want a new perfume, but first I must find out about a lasting one.

A.—A particularly good idea for women who claim that perfume does not "stay with them" is a Liquid Skin Sachet. It smooths on the skin very easily, and lingers longer because of its sachet base. It has a slower rate of diffusion and evaporation than any other type of fragrance. Try this Houbigant Chantilly Liquid Skin Sachet. Only $2.00 plus tax at better stores.

Daily Guide — Although the early morning hours may be a little heavy and dull, a more cheerful tone is possible in the afternoon. Social activities are favored as well as an exchange of ideas. Telephone calls and friendly visits are favored. Shop, attend to correspondence, plan little outings.

As the week progresses events pick up speed so it does not look like a very restful weekend coming up; do the little chores now. It is an excellent time to air your ideas. It is an excellent week to try to work out agreements and schedule conferences.

Happy Birthday, Cancer! You may have thought you were out of the confusion of the last few years, but if you didn't clear up certain emotional problems you may have to face them now. A more practical approach, and a courageous facing of facts will help. Some wishful thinking may be confusing issues with the result that you feel insecure, especially in your domestic affairs. You have a chance now to start completely new cycles in home, financial and working conditions.

Harris Baby

Mr. and Mrs. David J. Harris of Decatur announce the birth of a son on July 8 at Emory Hospital who has been named Frank Phillips for his maternal grandfather. Mrs. Harris is the former Polly Anna Philips.

Coach Weighs Just 595 Lbs. Per Rail Seat

NEW YORK, July 16 (AP)—The Budd Co. today unveiled a shiny new plastic and stainless steel railroad passenger car, which it says has the lightest weight per passenger of any car ever built in the United States.

The car, named the "Pioneer III," meets all the strength and safety requirements of the Assn. of American Railroads. Budd says, yet weighs only 595 pounds for each of its 88 seats. The weight per seat ratio, critically important to railroads, was said to be under the 950 pounds per seat of Pullman-Standard's "Train X." A conventional coach weighs about 1,500 pounds per seat.

Budd says it can sell the car for $95,000 if the company is building lots of 50, which would make the per-seat cost about $1,080. This compares with estimates of $1,000 for the Aerotrain and $1,650 for Train X.

The low weight is achieved through the use of plastics throughout almost all of the interior and a revolutionary, lightweight four-wheel truck with air springs that weighs one-third as much as conventional trucks.

NEW "MECHANICAL MULE"

This four-cylinder, gasoline-burning version of the Army's traditional four-legged hay-burner will be produced by Willys Motors, Inc., under a $3.5 million ordnance contract. The first military vehicle to carry a load (1,000 pounds) greater than its own weight (750 pounds), it's joining the Army to "take the load off the infantry's back." A steep Aberdeen Proving Grounds is no obstacle.

Wheat Rises On New Policy

CHICAGO, July 16 (AP)—Wheat responded to news of a change in government export policy with sharp gains on the Board of Trade today carrying over alone with it.

Other cereals did not fare so well, although most futures posted gains. Near-term and oats contracts closed for small fractional losses. Oats were restrained by reports of imports from Canada.

Before ending with small gains and losses all oats futures rose. The September contract, which was the most active, was up 1/4 cent to 22 1/4 cents. Wheat gains were at least as sharp. Wheat contracts were at least as sharp. Wheat contracts were at least as sharp.

There was no export business although Spain made inquiries for soybean oil.

Agriculture Dept. Raps Bill Giving Mills Cotton Surplus

WASHINGTON, July 16 (AP)—Asst. Sec. of Agriculture Marvin McLean said today the Agriculture Department opposes a bill making available to textile mills in this country surplus cotton owned by the Commodity Credit Corp.

McLean testified before the Senate Agriculture Committee which is considering legislation to authorize release of at least 750,000 bales of surplus cotton in each of the next four years.

The proposed bill states further that the CCC cotton should go at prices which the secretary of agriculture determines will allow the U.S. textile industry to regain the level of exports of cotton products maintained from 1947 through 1952.

McLean said it would be "almost impossible" to follow such cotton through trade channels until it was finally exported.

McLean said the department "feels very strongly the textile industry should be protected against the adverse effects resulting from the export program for raw cotton," and added that the department's cotton products export program "will afford this protection."

The American Farm Bureau Federation told the committee "a successful export subsidy program with respect to cotton textile products can be worked out by making payments to the textile mills that spin the cotton."

Frank K. Wooley, legislative counsel for the federation, said the organization opposes the pending bill because "it would be practically impossible to prevent cotton subsidized at the mill from entering the domestic market."

The National Cotton Council of America filed a statement with the committee opposing the bill on similar grounds. It recommended a direct equalization payment to the exporter of cotton textiles.

Sol Barkin, director of research for the Textile Workers Union of America, appeared in favor of the bill proposed by Sen. Margaret Chase Smith (R-Maine).

He urged that CCC sell cotton directly to the manufacturer at a price necessary to meet the prices in the prevailing world market. This would save the American taxpayer 30 million dollars a year as compared with the system of equalization allowances, Barkin told the committee.

OBITUARIES

Ira T. Martin

Ira Tilden Martin, 76, of 433 Techwood Dr., NW, died Monday in a private hospital. He had been ill for five weeks.

Mr. Martin was a native of Roswell and had been employed by Rich's as an interior decorator for 16 years.

He was a member of the Grace Park Methodist Church. Funeral services will be held at 3 p.m. Tuesday in Spring Hill.

The Rev. G. T. Wigley Jr., and the Rev. J. W. Aha will officiate. Burial will be in the Mt. Bethel Methodist Churchyard.

Survivors include his wife; two daughters, Mrs. R. D. McIntyre, Atlanta, and Mrs. W. M. Holmes, Columbus; two sons, H. L. and Bill Martin, both of Atlanta; three sisters, Mrs. R. H. Casey and Mrs. Mary Fridell, Marietta, and Mrs. V. H. Furrah, Atlanta, and a brother, J. E. Martin, West Hickory, N.C.

Mrs. Nolie Roberts

Mrs. Nolie Roberts, 54, of Meadow Lane drive, NE, died Monday in a private hospital.

Mrs. Roberts was a native of Milledgeville and a member of the St. Philip's Cathedral and the American Cocker Assn.

She was an auditor for the Internal Revenue Dept. Funeral services will be held at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday in Spring Hill.

Canon Hugh Sausy will officiate. Burial will be in the Black Springs Cemetery in Milledgeville.

Survivors include her mother, Mrs. J. I. Roberts, Milledgeville; two sisters, Mrs. C. D. Cooper Jr., Sumter, S.C., and Mrs. J. B. Moran, Milledgeville; three brothers, Moran and Jack B. Roberts, both of Atlanta, and C. H. Roberts, Milledgeville.

Rev. Oscar Bulloch

WARM SPRINGS, July 16—The Rev. Oscar Bulloch, 76, a retired minister, died Sunday night at his residence here.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. Tuesday at the Warm Springs Methodist Church. Burial will be in the Warm Springs Cemetery, with Cox Funeral Home of Manchester in charge.

Rev. Bulloch is survived by his wife; a daughter, Mrs. H. E. Friddle, Warm Springs; a son, O. C. Bulloch, Manchester; two sisters, Mrs. Tim Brown, Manchester, and Miss Alice Bulloch, Atlanta; a brother, Cyp Bulloch, Manchester; six grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

M. B. Bacot

M. B. Bacot, 56, of Mt. Vernon, N.Y., formerly of Atlanta, died Sunday in an Atlanta hospital.

Mr. Bacot, a native of Savannah, was an internal auditor for Robert Gair & Co. He was a member of the Episcopal Church and the Sons of Confederate Veterans, camp No. 985.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p.m. Tuesday at Spring Hill. The Rev. A. C. Peacock will officiate. Burial will be in Westview Cemetery.

Survivors include two daughters, Miss Harriet Bacot, and Mrs. L. A. Dickerson, both of Atlanta; a son, W. E. Bacot, of Atlanta, and a brother, T. B. Bacot of Savannah.

Mrs. Laura McKamy

DALTON, July 16—Mrs. Laura McKamy died at her home here Monday.

She was the widow of the late David Knox McKamy and the eldest daughter of Col. William Edwin and Georgia Driskell Wailes of Selma, Ala.

Survivors include a son, D. K. McKamy, Birmingham; a granddaughter, two great-grandchildren and two sisters, Mrs. Eddie E. Wailes and Mrs. Norris Smith, both of Dalton.

Funeral services will be held from the home Tuesday at 5 p.m. Burial will be in West Hill Cemetery.

Mrs. Charlotte O'Neil

Mrs. Charlotte O'Neil of Jacksonville, Fla., formerly of Atlanta, died Sunday at her home.

Mrs. O'Neil was a native of South Carolina. Graveside services were held Monday in Jacksonville.

Survivors include a brother, J. C. Neville of College Park.

Mrs. Myrtle B. Cox, 53, Dies; Brown High Teacher 30 Years

Mrs. Myrtle Baker Cox, 53, of 308 Oak St., East Point, died Monday in a private hospital. Mrs. Cox was an instructor in Atlanta's Brown High School more than 30 years.

Death was attributed to a rare, progressive respiratory illness similar to pneumonia. Mrs. Cox requested a post-mortem examination so that other persons stricken with the same disease might be helped. She had been confined to her home for a year.

HONORED AT BROWN

Mrs. Cox was unable to attend the "Myrtle Baker Cox Day" held in her honor last December at Brown High. Highlight of the day was the establishment of a scholarship fund in her honor. The first grant was made in June.

On "Myrtle Baker Cox Day" Miss Ira Jarrell, superintendent of Atlanta schools, said, "Mrs. Cox has made Atlanta a better place to live because of the citizens she has helped to build at Brown High. I don't know of anyone

Claude Sparks

Claude Sparks, 71, of 387 Pryor St., SW, died Sunday in a private hospital.

Mr. Sparks, a retired employee of the Southern Railway System, was a native of Eatonton. He attended the Methodist Church.

Graveside services will be held at 11 a.m. Tuesday in Hollywood Cemetery. Dr. L. E. Smith will officiate.

Survivors include a son, James Robert Sparks of Atlanta.

Wm. O. Key, 82; Printing Firm Veteran, Dies

William Osborne Key, 82, of 265 Georgia Ave., SE, died Monday in a private hospital. He had been ill for three years.

Mr. Key was a native of Meriwether County and had lived in Atlanta since childhood. For 56 years, he was affiliated with Foote & Davies Co., Atlanta printing firm.

Mr. Key was a member of the Baptist Church and was a Mason. He was the father of William O. Key, chief rewrite man for The Atlanta Journal.

Other survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Fred Kemner, Atlanta, and five sisters, Mrs. John Bohler, Mrs. B. E. Pearce and Mrs. Richard N. McArthur, all of Atlanta; Mrs. Simeon (Anne) Sanchez, Barwick, and Mrs. William Crumley, Marietta.

Glasses That Can't Be Seen

Free booklet explains how you may see without glasses!

Atlanta (Special) — A European scientist has invented a new type of contact lens, which may enable millions of Americans who are now slaves to glasses to actually throw them away. The secret of the difference and superiority of the lens lies in a special ground and polished recessed and dome central portion, which prevents the lens from touching the most sensitive part of the eye—its center. Visual discomfort and poor sight can now be improved. The lens is absolutely invisible. No fluids or impressions are required. Persons who wear thick glasses with strong corrections; post-cataract cases and cases of Kerato-conus, mixed astigmatism, strong far-sightedness and nearsightedness can now be corrected. Come in, write or phone for your copy of the interesting Booklet, "The Truth About Contact Lenses," to Research Director, Atlanta Invisible Contact Lens Service, Volunteer Bldg., 66 Luckie St., Suite 323, Atlanta, Ga. Phone JACKson 3-3125 or send a post card.

A Rhyme a Day

"Most of our superstitions stem from primitive people and their origins are unknown. . . . Passed down from generation to generation, they are so firmly rooted that even our most enlightened people fear the results if they do or fail to do certain things."—Article quote.

Some folks are obsessed by hunches . . . that their troubles come in bunches . . . and they sometimes look for trouble when the trouble isn't there . . . for some ancient superstition . . . puts them in a prime condition . . . for a long and dismal journey up the river of despair.

They would rather bite an adder . . . than to walk beneath a ladder . . . if they do it, they are fearful of some awful aftermath . . . and a black cat that's pursuing . . . some sweet kitty in his wooing . . . fills them with a nameless terror when he scoots across their path.

Fears like those are quite unfounded . . . but a lot of folks are hounded . . . by some foolish superstition until fear becomes a habit . . . but I think I am enlightened . . . so I'm very seldom frightened . . . since I have a four-leaf clover and the hind-foot of a rabbit.

Can Broken Friendships Be Mended?

QUESTION: A friend of mine for many years has broken with me. The break came over a trivial matter but now he will not speak. I am most unhappy and I'd go to him if I could and beg his forgiveness for my part in the affair. Can this friendship, which once was deep, be mended again?—G. J.

ANSWER: Of course it can be mended if both sides have an honest and wholehearted desire to do so. Deep friendships, however, are harder to mend after a break. Shallower friendships do not mean so much and are easier to mend.

The Bible tells us that if one has wronged us and then asks forgiveness we are to forgive without reservation, even to 70 times seven. But you say your former friend will not let you confess your part in the break and will not speak to you. First, you must think well of him; then speak well of him. Do not intrude but wait with kindly patience. Try to show your good will toward him unostentatiously.

Restored friendship of its former great depth will amply re-

Confederate Signal Corps Enlists 3rd Army Colonels

The Confederate Signal Corps, an Atlanta Civil Defense organization of amateur radio operators, has invaded the ranks of top military brass at Ft. McPherson.

"Gen." Doyle Hurley, commander of the corps, has conferred the honorary rank of "Confederate colonels" on two Third Army Signal Corps officers, Lt. Col. Frederick Moseley, chief of Communications Division, and Maj. Gerard D. Furlong, director of the Military Affiliate Radio System (MARS).

Hurley cited the two officers for their cooperative efforts in supplying some of the Confederate Signal Corps' necessary equipment for communication during such programs as the school evacuation drill against air attack.

Authentic Confederate certificates and Lee field hats made Lt. Col. Moseley and Maj. Furlong bona fide members of the corps, the civil defense security for the zone south of Mitchell street to Fairburn.

The corps' ham operators, stimulated into organization by 1951 civil defense pressures, have since come to the public's rescue

Birds Are Fenced Out As Peril to Big Ben

LONDON, July 15 (UP) — The British government has gone into action to protect Big Ben from the birds.

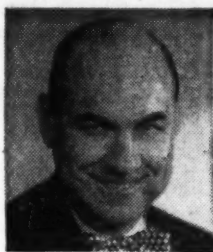

Workmen on the great London clock, now stopped for renovations, discovered that pigeons and starlings were endangering the timepiece by their massed presence.

As a result, authorities announced that 200 meshed bronze grills costing $5,600 will be installed to keep the birds out.

Fulton Receipts Jump $412,340

Fulton County's receipts from taxes and other sources are $412,340 higher so far this year than for the same period in 1955, County Comptroller John Still has reported.

The comptroller, in a report on the condition of the county budget, said the increase occurs in collection of delinquent tax and from sources other than tax. Collection of current taxes began this month and the digest indicates a normal increase for the year, he added.
